ONLY FEW HOURS OF LIFE REMAIN FOR MISS ANTHONY

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 11.—Miss Susan B. Anthony is not expected to survive many hours. She was taken with a sudden pain in the heart this afternoon and became unconscious and has remained so most of the time since. Relatives have been summoned to her bedside. She is able to make a few wants known, but most of the time is unconscious and appears to be sinking.

Wreck Near Bloomdale, O., Followed by Awful and Sickening Scenes.

MANY ARE SCALDED

B. & O. Train No. 7 Collides With Freight Resulting in Serious Injuries to Many.

WRECKAGE IS SOON BLAZING

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

TOLEDO, O., March 11.—Two killed and 15 injured, one of whom will die, is the list of fatalities in a wreck of two freight trains and a fast passenger train, No. 7, on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, which occurred at 11:35 o'clock this morning about two miles from Bloomdale, O.

Two engines were completely wrecked and the mail and express cars, two baggage cars, two passenger coaches and four freight cars were completely demolished and later burned up.

THE DEAD:

JOHN HOOTMAN, Chicago Junction, fireman passenger train.

W. HOY, Wheeling, W. Va., postal clerk.

FATALLY INJURED:

BENJAMIN C. SNOOK, Chicago Junction, mail clerk, head cut, scalded, and internally injured.

INJURED:

J. H. SIEGEL, Chicago Junction, engineer passenger train, head cut, left arm broken, scalded.

B. H. OSBORN, Chicago Junction, baggageman, head and hands burned.

OTTO LEE, Fostoria, circus performer, head and hands scalded.

MRS. GEORGE STAIR, Detroit, three ribs broken.

EDWARD LOTT, Lacy, Iowa, scalded.

H. F. WALLET, Sullivan, Iowa, badly scalded.

CATHARINE PRIGG, aged 12, Baltimore, leg bruised and thigh scalded.

OLIVER MARTRAT, Paris, France, side burned.

OWEN WOODS, Jessup, Iowa, newsboy, head scalded.

WILLIAM RENSER, Aurora, Ill., head and body scalded.

W. A. BAILEY, cut about head.

THOMAS VANATTA, Newark, O., expressman, bruised.

C. P. FRANK, Chicago, slight cuts about head.

ILA GAGGHER, Philadelphia, leg cut.

The Baltimore & Ohio flyer crashed into a freight wreck at the station known as Godsend, two miles east of Bloomdale, and soon after the trains were in flames, people writhing in agony and two dying before assistance could be given them.

Three of the cars telescoped and the awful scenes of agony which followed can scarcely be described. Many of the trainmen were pinned beneath the beams, and those near the engine suffered from escaping steam. To add to this horror the flames crept swiftly over the debris.

The wreck trains were called for almost instantly and soon after aid was on the scene. Physicians from Fostoria and other neighboring places were hurried to the wreck.

Eastbound freight No. 98, from Garrett, Ind., was running in two sections. At Godsend the first section stopped for water. A fierce snowstorm was raging, and obscured the first section from Engineer Albert Guastke and Fireman Nicholson of the second section, and their train dashed down upon it. When they discovered it, it was impossible to stop and their engine crashed into the rear of the freight ahead, throwing one car over on the parallel track, which was open for the fast passenger, westbound. At that moment the passenger came along at full speed.

The engine hit the derailed car and was almost demolished. The mail and baggage cars were thrown over the engine, two passenger coaches were splintered and a Pullman car was derailed, but none of the occupants injured.

Conductor Koobel of Chicago Junction was in charge of the passenger train.

Injured passengers, who are now at Hotel Sherwood, Fostoria, will be sent on to their destination tomorrow if able to travel.

SHE SEES IN THE DARK.

Wonderful Woman of Taskee Can Give Correct Answers to All Sorts of Questions.

TASKEE, MO., March 11.—(Special.)—In a log cabin three miles from this village, in the rough Warne county foothills of the Ozarks, lives Mrs. W. E. Forbes, a woman with a prophetic instinct, who is known as the "wonderful woman of Taskee. She is the wife of a farmer. In 1896 she was stung by some species of worm. From this sting she almost died. Since her recovery her husband noticed that she could see things in the dark, and answer questions relating to things of which she knew nothing.

The neighbors learned of this and would congregate at the Forbes home and ask Mrs. Forbes about lost articles, strayed stock, the proper time to plant and many other things. Invariably they received correct answers.

The fame of the "wonderful woman of Taskee" spread far and wide, and persons came from all parts of the country to get information concerning lost articles, future prospects or business ventures.

In the last year 8,000 persons have visited her, and the daily average this year is something like 40 a day.

RECONCILIATION WITH HER HUSBAND IS CAUSE OF DEATH

Could Not Survive Re-Establishment of Amicable Relations After Long Separation.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

NEWARK, N. J., March 11.—Mrs. Mary Glendennon, 25 years old, of 403 Walnut street, visited Mrs. John Vleit, a relative at 179 Adams street yesterday afternoon and unexpectedly met her husband for the first time since their separation 18 months ago. There was a reconciliation, attended by considerable emotion and excitement.

In the evening Glendennon and Vleit went for a walk. Before they returned Mrs. Glendennon became ill and in a few minutes she collapsed, death ensuing before a physician could be summoned.

County Physician McKenzie gave heart disease as the cause of death and expressed the opinion that it was due to the excitement through which she had passed during the day.

DON'T LIKE PRESENT STYLE OF SPELLING? THESE MEN WILL CHANGE IT FOR YOU AND MR. CARNEGIE PAYS THE FREIGHT

The Simplified Spelling Board Is Named to Tell How to Do It.

TIME IS RIPE FOR A CHANGE

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, March 12.—Andrew Carnegie has offered to pay all expense incurred in bringing about a change in spelling. For this the simplified spelling board has been organized. It consists of 30 members living in various parts of the union, among them being Mr. Carnegie, President Butler of Columbia university, S. L. Clemens (Mark Twain), Lyman J. Gage, ex-secretary of the treasury; Richard Watson Gilder, editor of the Century magazine; Prof. Brander Matthews of Columbia, and President Woodward of the Carnegie institute of Washington.

The establishment of the simplified spelling board is the result of an effort made within the past year to secure the use, by men of position, of certain simplified spelling, adopted some years ago by the National Educational association and now used by several important publications. The response to this request was very cordial. The members of the simplified spelling board believe that the time is now ripe for a forward movement. They have learned the nature and the strength of the opposition to be overcome. They will not advocate change merely for the sake of change. They do not intend to urge any violent alteration in the appearance of familiar words. They will not advance any extreme theories. They will not expect to accomplish their task in a day or in a year. They are willing to make haste slowly, in the expectation of overcoming by degress the prejudice existing in favor of the present cumbersome orthography. They wish to expedite that process of simplification which has been going on in English, ever since the invention of printing, notably in the omission of silent and useless letters. Not so long ago, almanac was spelt almanack, and music was musick. In the last few years technic has been winning acceptance in place of technique, program has been substituting itself for programme, catalog for catalogue and tho for though.

MINISTER IS EMPHATIC.

Will Vindicate Character and a Woman's Reputation If He Goes Through the Infernal Regions.

NEW YORK, March 11.—(Special.)—Named as co-respondent in a suit for absolute divorce, based on statutory grounds, instituted in Washington by Charles C. Bassett, against his wife, Fannie Rice Bassett, the Rev. E. Lawrence Hunt, pastor of the Noble Street Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, tonight declared that his innocence will be established.

"I'll see her through this trouble if I have to go through hell for it," said the Rev. Mr. Hunt, when a Washington woman told him that his relations with Mrs. Bassett had started a scandal. Seated in the Sunday school room of his church in Noble and Lorimer streets today, he repeated the declaration.

In his complaint Mr. Bassett alleges that his wife and the clergyman were together in Washington, Baltimore, Atlantic City, Philadelphia and New York.

KILS HIMSELF FOR GIRL.

When Ollie Bowers Fails to Return Home on Time Edward Ralston Commits Suicide.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., March 11.—(Special.)—Edward Ralston, aged 28, a brakeman, committed suicide today by shooting himself in the head. Disappointed because his sweetheart, Ollie Bowers, had not returned home from a visit to Wheeling, the young man carried out the threat he made to her a few days ago, when he said he would kill himself if she did not come back to him.

He expected her on the steamer Ben Hur, and when he found that she had not come he rushed to his room and ended his life. Miss Bowers had missed the boat and arrived home on the evening train. She suffered a nervous collapse when told of Ralston's deed.

To Gazette Readers and Newsdealers.

When The Gazette decided to publish the half-tone illustrated section, beginning with yesterday's issue, it expected a largely increased demand for the paper, but it regrets it was not prepared for the many extra thousands demanded by people who wanted the best and handsomest paper ever issued in the city. From all quarters came calls for extra copies, newsdealers telephoning late in the afternoon for an additional supply. In many cases papers could not be sent because none was to be had. In order to be certain of getting a sufficient supply for next Sunday, The Gazette advises individuals to place their order early with the carrier or dealer, so that the latter may be prepared. Next Sunday's paper will excel yesterday's, so don't fail to get it.

WALTER DORMAN, CONDUCTOR, NORMAN H. GEYSER, 'CELLIST

Orchestra Composed of Prisoners Renders Concert Greatly Appreciated by Listeners—Program a Classical One and Soloists Best of Their Class.

Over 900 lovers of music assembled yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the Western penitentiary to attend the usual Sunday afternoon orchestra concert. The hall is commodious and there was none of the disorderly and nerve-trying pushing and jostling that often marks the rush for seats at ordinary orchestra concerts in Pittsburgh. All those present had seats and attested their musical culture by their attentive attitude and silence during the rendition of the numbers, both vocal and instrumental. Talking was not indulged in even during the interludes. Talking in church is a breach of prison discipline.

Conductor Walter Dorman, formerly of the Biddle Brothers' widely known band, was at his best yesterday and presented to the audience a purely classical program. The soloists were those whose talents have won for them distinction in their profession. A valuable addition to the orchestra, recently acquired, has added an attraction to those who indulge their musical taste. Norman H. Geyser, a prominent Allegheny musician, is now the 'cello soloist and has made a decided hit. Most of those prominent in these musical events have signed long contracts with the management and their gifts will be appreciated by hundreds of those who sojourn at Riverside.

POPULAR TUNES EXCITE FARMERS OF OLD BEAVER

At Sale of Household Goods in Darlington They Bid $10 Phonograph Up to $125.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

DARLINGTON, PA., March 11.—The unusual spectacle of a few music-loving farmers bidding up a second-hand $10 phonograph to $125 just because it rendered such popular songs as "Nobody Works but Father" and "Always in the Way," in good shape, was presented at an auction sale of William Faushaught's furniture yesterday, near here. Faushaught operated the machine while the sale progressed and kept everyone in good humor, and when the auctioneer put the apparatus under the hammer the most spirited bidding during the sale began.

As "Nobody Works but Father" pealed out one bidder exclaimed, "I'll raise it from $75 to $100, Mr. Auctioneer; I must take that home tonight." Another raised it $5 and waved his greenbacks in the auctioneer's face, when the utmost excitement prevailed, the crowd surging backward and forward, knocking the auctioneer's stand from beneath him. He fell on the backs of the excited farmers near him, and in the squeeze and rush he was almost trampled upon.

The operator of the phonograph was forced to throw it on his shoulder and dash inside the house to keep it safe. The door was beseiged by the excited bidders, who thought some one had stolen it, but the auctioneer finally quieted them and knocked it down at $125.

TO RECALL FILIPINO TRIP.

Dinner for Secretary Taft Is Being Arranged by Party That Went to Philippines.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(Special.)—What promises to be one of the most interesting dinners in Washington this season will be given March 20, at the New Willard, by the members of the Taft party, complimentary to the secretary of war.

All the members who made the trip to the Philippines, including Representative and Mrs. Longworth, are arrangnig the spectacular part of the entertainment. There will be a great floral display of Philippine orchids and there will be a Filipino village, Tagalog jungle, and another scene will represent the deck of the Manchuria. There will be many other reminders of the trip.

CORELLI'S ROMANCE DRIVES HINDOO TO SUICIDE

Not Satisfied With the Laws of Life and Death, He Shoots Himself Twice.

"Death is a very beautiful and solemn thing."

After marking this quotation in Marie Corelli's "Romance of Two Worlds," Ssar Sundhoo, a Hindoo, committed suicide in his room early yesterday morning at 1022 Fifth avenue by shooting himself twice in the mouth with a 38-caliber revolver. He left the following letter:

The end of the dream. What brutal code compels us to be born, to live, to suffer, and to die without a reason? To fill the laws of the eternal or perpetual wheel of destruction? Our sage, Georg Nanich, teaches us it's laws of natural necessity. Flowers bloom, rivers flow, and so the universe is circling. If necessity caused my birth it also demanded my death. It could not force me to live against my will. It's necessity, and I welcome it. Good-bye all.

The letter was signed in Hindoostanee.

Sundhoo boarded with John Mathias for about a month. He was connected with the Pawnee Bill wild west show for the last three years. Saturday night he went home about 9 o'clock and went to his room. Shortly after midnight Mrs. Mathias heard two shots. Thinking they were fired in the street, she paid no attention to them. As Sundhoo did not appear yesterday, Mathias went to his room at 9:30 o'clock last night. The Hindoo was lying on the floor dead with a revolver clenched in his hand. The face was covered with blood. He had shot himself twice through the roof of the mouth.

On the bed was found a copy of "Romance of Two Worlds." The book was open. A card found in the Hindoo's pocket showed him to be a member of the Conneaut (O.) lodge No. 408, of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Mathias said Sundhoo was very quiet and never complained of want of money or about his health.

Fatal Burlington Collision.

LINCOLN, NEB., March 11.—Two Burlington passenger trains collided head on near Akron, Colo., on a curve in a deep cut, this afternoon, killing C. H. Sherwood, a mail weigher, and injuring four trainmen. Two locomotives, a mail car and a baggage car were reduced to wreckage. No passengers were injured.

PRETTY VIRGINIA GETS WIRELESS FROM HEAVEN

Pittsburgh Girl Who Married a Count Is Now in a New York Insane Asylum.

Believing she is receiving wireless messages from heaven, Mrs. Virginia Knox Patterson, the pretty wife of Joseph N. Patterson, a wealthy manufacturer, has been placed in Bellevue hospital, New York city. Her husband says her condition is the result of alcoholism.

Mrs. Patterson, who is a descendant of the founder of Knoxville, was thrice married, twice to the man whose name she now bears and once to Guiseppe Carussi, Count Di Montercole of Italy. Her early life was spent in Pittsburgh and her marriage to the Count Carussi in October, 1888, was the event of the season. Three ceremonies were performed. City hall was the scene of the first, when the civil ceremony took place. Leaving there, the couple were driven to Trinity Episcopal church, where the rector officiated, and the rites of the church of Rome followed at the old St. Paul's cathedral in Fifth ave.

From the first, it is said, the count and his bride did not get along well, and even before they left that evening for New York they quarreled in the station. From New York, on the third day after their marriage, they sailed for Italy to reside near Florence. Word came from time to time that the count abused his bride and quarreled constantly with her because she refused to turn over her fortune to him. At one time the count locked her in a room and she was only liberated after a detachment of soldiers had been sent in response to an appeal to King Humbert. She left the count, and, securing a divorce, returned to America, taking up her residence in New York. The count followed her in the hope of effecting a reconciliation, but she refused to see him. After repeated repulses he returned to Italy. Driven insane by drink, he was placed in an asylum and died within a short time.

It was not a great while after her return to New York that Virginia Knox met Joseph Patterson, a wealthy manufacturer. They were married in Philadelphia, and returned to New York to reside. In a little more than a year they separated, and she secured a divorce, but it was not long before they became reconciled and were re-married. They have since been living at 11 East Ninth street, New York. Her husband says his wife began to show signs of insanity about three years ago. She began to drink to excess, he says, and some days would drink two quarts of whisky.

Prays With Prisoners and Is Killed.

STEUBENVILLE, O., March 11.—(Special.)—Within five minutes after leaving the county jail, where he prayed with the prisoners, I. D. W. Daugherty, aged 45, was struck by a Panhandle passenger train at a grade crossing and killed.

Reject Every Proposition Made by President John Mitchell's Committee.

REPLY IS EMPHATIC

Decline to Officially Recognize U. M. W. A. and Stand Pat on 1902 Award and Scale.

CAN'T RAISE PRICE OF COAL

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau, Herald Building, Herald Square, NEW YORK, March 11.

The anthracite coal operators today made their reply to the demands of the miners, refusing every demand made and insisting upon continuing for three years more with the wages and conditions established by President Roosevelt's anthracite commission of 1902.

President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America declined absolutely to say anything regarding the operators' reply. None of the other members of the miners' committee will talk. President Mitchell left this noon for Indianapolis to prepare for the mine workers' convention on March 15. Prior to his departure there was a long meeting of the miners' committee, after which all its members went to their homes or to different points in Pennsylvania to discuss the operators' reply with the district leaders of the miners.

The operators in their reply emphatically refuse official recognition of the United Mine Workers of America, saying on this subject:

"We stand unalterably for the open shop, and again decline to make an agreement with the United Mine Workers of America, an organization controlled by a rival industry."

In refusing the 10 per cent increased wages asked by the miners, the operators say that if this were granted the cost of coal to domestic consumers would be increased $1.20 a ton, without a penny of increase in profit to the operator. Following is the important portion of the operators' reply:

We cannot increase wages without advancing the price of coal, and we are not willing to advance the price of coal. You may reply that we took this same position in 1900 and 1902. So we did. We could not, of our own accord, have advanced the price of coal; but by the aid of the public you succeeded in getting wages raised, and thereby compelled us to advance the price of coal in order to pay the demands you made upon us.

Award Should Stand.

Our proposition is, that the awards made by the anthracite coal strike commission and the principles upon which they were established by the commission, and the methods established for carrying out their findings and awards shall be continued for and during a further term of three years from the first day of April, 1906.

It had been our hope and we trusted, the public expectation as well, that the effect of the exhaustive investigation and findings of the distinguished citizens who constituted the anthracite strike commission would be to establish a just and permanent adjustment of the relations between the operators and their employes. We therefore regret your suggestions that an entirely new and untried arrangement should be made, which is only to last for one year.

It is not to the interest of employers or employes, nor of the public, to have the mining business, as well as the general business and comfort of the people, seriously disturbed by these yearly contentions.

Neither can stand these progressive and enormous increases in the cost of production of anthracite coal, followed necessarily by corresponding increases in its price.

It is peculiarly fortunate, therefore, that existing conditions have all been the result of arbitrations by third persons, so that neither party can say that it has not had due consideration. There can be no doubt that the good of all concerned will be served best by adhering to the results thus reached.

The present constitution of the United Mine Workers of America does not present the most inviting inducements to the operators to enter into contractual relations with it. Minors are represented in conventions called for the consideration of strikes; while boys do not go as delegates, only one case having been noted, they send delegates to such conventions, and as the boys in the union in the anthracite region constitute about 20 per cent of the membership it is easily seen that their representatives, who may be obliged to act on instructions, may have the balance of power, and thus carry a vote for a strike when the more conservative and experienced members might be opposed to it.

To Benefit Bituminous Operators.

These and other objections found by the strike commission to such an agreement exist today. It is possible for an organization controlling the bituminous and anthracite miners to so shape its course that the bituminous operators can increase wages, and recoup themselves by an ad-

ANTHRACITE SITUATION IS SERIOUS, SAYS NEILL

U. S. Commissioner of Labor Confers With John Mitchell on Probability of Miners' Strike.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—Dr. Charles P. Neill, United States commissioner of labor, today came to Philadelphia from Washington and conferred with John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who was on his way to Indianapolis.

Dr. Neill has the entire confidence of the president and is the umpire of the anthracite board of conciliation in all disputes where the board of six is equally divided. It is believed Neill came here to see Mr. Mitchell at the instance of President Roosevelt. Neither Mr. Mitchell nor Mr. Neill made any secret of their belief that the situation in the anthracite region is grave.

"It is so bad and so critical as it can be without coming to an open rupture," said the commissioner of labor.

"The outlook is serious," was Mr. Mitchell's only comment.

After the conference Mr. Mitchell left for the west and Mr. Neill returned to Washington. Neither would discuss the probability of intervention by the President.

COLD WAVE CLOSE ON THE TRAIL OF HEAVY SNOWSTORM

Winter King Is Crowding Back Approach of Spring—Blizzard Points This Way.

Snow, snow, the bashful snow,
Came tumbling down like starch;
It lacked the nerve to stay, and so
Pitt cries to Winter—"March!"

Pittsburgh had a snowstorm yesterday which may be followed by a cold wave tomorrow. While a large part of the country rejoiced yesterday with the warmth and gayety of springtime, this city was clothed in a garb of white.

The varieties of weather here and elsewhere were typical of March. In the morning it was fair and sunshiny. At night there was a steady fall of white flakes. In the morning the population went to church dressed to indicate the near approach of Easter. A few hours later umbrellas and winter coats made their appearance. The snowfall was something of a phenomena. Downtown the snow was so wet that it melted into the ground. In the suburbs and on the hilltops and more elevated districts there was a covering of white, several inches deep.

The snowfall was confined principally to the Ohio valley and lower lake regions. Except in the northwest a real spring temperature prevailed. In the northwest appeared distinct signs of cold weather, which might be classed as a blizzard for this season of the year. At Yellowstone park the thermometer stood 4 degrees below zero and reports were received of a decidedly falling temperature from all parts of the northwest, pointing in an easterly and southeasterly direction. The temperature in the south was unusually high. In Pittsburgh it hovered close around the freezing point. More snow is expected here today.

Senator Depew in a Sanitarium.

NEW YORK, March 11.—(Special.)—Senator Chauncey M. Depew has been a patient in a New Jersey sanitarium for 10 days, suffering from nervous exhaustion. Though a very sick man when taken to the institution, he has so far recovered that he will be about again within a few days. It is hinted that the senator's breakdown was caused by the adverse criticism of him following the insurance scandal. Mrs. Depew is still abroad.

President Appreciates Comrades.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Among the wounded in the battle of Mount Dajo was Lieut. Gordon Johnston, formerly a lieutenant in the President's regiment. The President cabled him: "How are you?" Today the President received the following reply, dated at Zamboanga: "Fine, thanks."

vances in price through a strike in the anthracite mines.

We know of no changes in conditions that can be used to sustain this renewed demand for an eight-hour day. On the other hand, the expectation of the commission that the reduction from ten hours to nine hours "should not result in any decrease in the output of the mines," has not been realized.

Our experience shows that it is impracticable to produce as much coal working nine hours, breaker time, as we can working ten hours. If now we reduce breaker time to eight hours, our production must be decreased, and our cost is necessarily increased, because our expensive machinery is idle an additional hour per day—and not producing a return on the capital invested.

Our schedule of wages as explained in your letter involves the old demand for a uniform scale of wages throughout the entire region. It is impracticable, by reason of the varying conditions existing in the region and at the collieries, to establish any such uniform scale.

The payrolls of our companies show that the employes are now being paid exceptionally high wages, as compared with the wages paid to employes engaged in any like industry in this or any other country. There can be no room here for dispute.

Miner's Annual Earning.

In the official report of George W. Hartlein, secretary and treasurer of the Ninth district, and one of your committee, he shows that the company man is receiving per year "a total of $650 41, or $208 91 more than what he received in 1899." He also shows that the contract miner is earning per year "$853 10, or $442 72 more than he received in 1899."

The suggestion that we agree "that no contract miner shall have more than one working place at the same time,' and 'shall not have more than two laborers at the same time' strikes us most unfavorably. We have no legal or moral right to establish such arbitrary rules. Men must be free to act for themselves. Where the conditions are such as to safely permit men to work we cannot consent to limiting the ability and ambition of industrious men by arbitrarily agreeing to restrict their opportunities to earn increased remuneration.

You ask us, in order to provide funds for the expenditures incurred by the miners' organization, to agree that each company shall collect from each employe such an amount as may be levied by your organization monthly, the amounts thus collected at each colliery to be turned over to an authorized committee at the colliery.

As a matter of policy we would not make such an agreement as you request, and as a matter of law, we are not permitted to make it. Your check-off system works unjustly to the non-union man. We have consistently refused to make any deductions from the men's wages. They must be left at liberty to do with their earnings as they please, and under no circumstances will we make it a condition of employment that such sums shall be collected.

We see no reason to change the board of conciliation as established by the anthracite coal strike commission. Your system would simply involve the creation of a series of minor boards, whose decisions might be conflicting, and from which appeals would have to be taken to an arbitrator, thereby creating more delays than now exist."

Demands of the Miners.

The demands of the mine workers, which were prepared by a committee of seven with John Mitchell as chairman, were forwarded to President Baer, chairman of a similar committee representing the anthracite operators, on February 27. They sought to provide for an agreement between the representatives of the United Mine Workers of America and the various anthracite operating companies that certain wages, rates, hours of labor and conditions of employment should become effective April 1, 1906, and continue in effect until April 1, 1907.

A statement of these demands is embodied in the following letter sent to the committee of operators by President Mitchell, acting for the miners' committee:

We favor a uniform scale of wages for men paid by the day, hour or week, because of the fact that men performing precisely the same character and, indeed, the same amount of labor, cannot work with any degree of contentment while the compensation received by them is not uniform. At the present time this condition exists in the anthracite field. We feel that the proposition which we have submitted, fixing uniform rates for similar classes of labor, will appeal favorably to the members of your committee, and that the rates themselves are entirely conservative and not in excess of rates paid to men performing practically, if not exactly, the same class of labor in bituminous mines.

We propose an increase of 10 per cent in the rates paid to contract miners for several reasons. First, the general industrial, commercial and trade conditions of the country justify an increase of wages to all classes of labor. The prosperity of the coal carrying roads is unprecedented; as is demonstrated by their reported earnings and the enhanced value of their stocks.

We favor an eight-hour workday, because eight hours is the standard working day of coal mine workers in nearly all of the bituminous districts of our country, as well as in many of the mining districts of Great Britain and the continent, and eight hours is as long as a man can work in a coal mine without doing injury to his own health and consequent injury to society. We believe that the establishment of a maximum eight-hour working day will not reduce production materially, even if figured upon the basis of the output per man per working day.

We favor the system of weighing and paying for coal by weight, wherever the conditions of the vein would make this system practicable, because the present system, whereby coal is paid for by the car, has given rise to much discontent, owing to the varied sizes of cars now in use and to the constant friction which naturally arises when new cars are built and introduced, and to the seemingly unceasing desire of the companies to have the men load more coal upon these cars without a corresponding increase in compensation.

We favor a reconstruction of the board of conciliation because of the delays that have occurred during the past three years in the adjustment of grievances. Indeed, there are some cases which have been in the hands of the board for two years without a final decision having been rendered; and in very few cases have final decisions been reached in less than three months' time.

WORST FEARS ARE REALIZED

Rescuers in French Mine Disaster Satisfied Over 1,000 Are Dead.

AWFUL SCENES AT PIT

Military Guard of 400 Soldiers Is Thrown About the Camp Morgue and Mines.

RESCUING PARTY MAY BE LOST

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

PARIS, March 11.—The worst fears as to the enormity of the mine disaster in the Courrieres district of the Pas-de-Calais Saturday morning have been realized. The death list numbers 1,100 and the whole of the region stands appalled at the terrible tragedy, which has brought sorrow to 6,000 fathers, mothers, wives and children. The last great mine disaster in France occurred in 1885, when 293 persons were killed and 80 injured, but that and all others sink into insignificance before Courrieres.

The vast mortuary is under military guard. 400 soldiers having arrived there to assist in holding in check the crowds of distressed mourners. For a time hope had been held out to the people that tappings on pipes by the imprisoned men had been heard, but gradually this hope vanished and the people demanded admission to see the bodies, and even threatened to break through the cordon of troops, who had the greatest difficulty in keeping the crowds from the pit. One man named Sylvestre succeeded in entering the mine, but he never returned. It is believed he groped about inside until he was overcome by the gases and perished. It is reported that a rescue party numbering 40 has been cut off by the caving in of one of the galleries.

Raising Relief Fund.

Minister of Public Works Gautier, Minister of the Interior Dubief and the secretary of President Falliores remain on the ground endeavoring to comfort the distressed families of the miners. President Falliores has given $2,000 to aid in relief measures. The ministry will add a further sum to this and the chamber of deputies will be asked to vote $100,000 to alleviate distress. Ministers Goutier and Dubief have received complete details of the catastrophe from M. Lavaurs, the director of the mine.

"Of 1,800 miners who were down in the pits when the explosion occurred," he said, "there were 779 rescued. A number of these were injured and some have died since. At the present moment over 1,000 remain imprisoned."

Another director declared that the imprisoned men numbered 1,100, and he believed all are dead. This was whispered into the ear of the minister in order that his words might not be overheard by the pale-faced miners who stood anxiously about the mine building waiting for an official view on the state of affairs. Then the ministers listened to a graphic description of the scene in the mine by Leon Cerf, one of the men rescued, and who still is suffering from the terrible effects of his experience.

Tells Story of Explosion.

"I was working with a gang when the explosion occurred. The foreman immediately shouted for us to follow him, and, dashing into a recess in the gallery, we were followed by a blast of poisonous gases which rushed by, however, without affecting us. We remained there for eight hours when, feeling that suffocation was gradually coming upon us we attempted to escape. We crawled in single file toward the shaft but several of the men dropped dead on the way, including my son and the foreman. I carried my nephew on my back for 40 minutes and succeeded in saving him. It took us four hours to reach the shaft."

For the time being the mine building has been transferred into a mortuary chamber, and all about in it lie the carbonized and almost unrecognizable bodies of miners which were taken there as they were brought up from the mine. Stricken relatives arrive at the mine building from time to time, searching for missing members of their families, and indescribable scenes occur as women recognize loved ones. Heartrending scenes, too, are witnessed about the mouth of pit No. 4. The bands of rescuers are continually descending and returning with bodies. The women with children in their arms attempt to break through the cordon of troops, which form a lane through which the body-bearers proceed to the mortuary chamber.

Bodies Badly Burned.

Sometimes the burden consists of a mere heap of burnt flesh and in nearly every case the body is terribly lacerated. Only one-half of the bodies recovered have been identified.

Despite the danger incurred the volunteers, who include a number of those who were successful in escaping at the time of the explosion, do not hesitate to descend the shaft. Some of them have been down more than a dozen times. One of them after having brought up 14 bodies was suffocated on his 15th attempt, and it is feared that other fatalities among the volunteers will follow as the air in the mines is still impregnated with noxious gases. A number of the men engaged in rescue work have already been brought to the surface unconscious and as they were driven to their homes in closed carriages the women followed and broke the windows, suspecting that bodies were being hurried away.

Several miners have come up from Pit 11, which is connected with Pit No. 3. They effected their escape by means of a ladder, and as they came from the mouth of the pit they appeared to be bordering on madness. All of them were more or less injured. When asked about their comrades, one of them said: "It is horrible. All of them are dead." A young miner who escaped from Pit No. 4, where about 500 men remain, said:

Saw Piles of Bodies.

"I was working about 50 feet from the shaft. Suddenly I felt a puff of hot gases and started toward the shaft. It was half suffocated and was unable to advance further because of the fumes. Finally, however, I succeeded in reaching the cage and came up in it. After the blast I neither heard nor saw more of my comrades, and I believe that all in that gallery in which I was working are dead." Another miner said: "It is indescribable. Everything was demolished or has fallen in. I saw bodies lying in piles. My son is below."

One rescuer has asserted that he heard voices in the mine, and others found two horses still living. This gives rise to hope that some of the men are still living. Replying to an inquiry as to whether hope remained for the finding of more men alive in the mine, an engineer who had been down the shaft said:

"It is scarcely possible. The state of the galleries is such that clearing them will be a difficult task, while the flames were so fierce that many of the victims must have been reduced to ashes."

It is thought hardly possible that many bodies will be recovered tomorrow, owing to the difficulty of reaching the bottom pits, the runners on which the cages descend being broken or bent. The engineers are endeavoring to devise means for locating the dangerous zone in the mine and shring the galleries. The shaft of Pit No. 5 is completely blocked, and the authorities are considering the advisability of dropping a heavy mass of metal down the shaft in order to clear it and thus enable them to descend and learn the worst.

Elevator's Fall Causes Fire.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 11.—(Special.)—The elevator in Gothman Bros. store fell last night, causing a pulley to fall and short-circuited electric light wires. In the blaze that resulted the building was destroyed.

ORANG-OUTANG CAPTURES SHIP AND WHIPS SAILORS

After Two Days' Battle the Ape Becomes Victor and Rules the Comings and Goings of the Crew of the Hetty Erb.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—Three able-bodied seamen and the first mate of the schooner Hetty Erb, are laid up in hospitals here as a result of a battle with a pet orang-outang, fought while the schooner was on her way to this port. The fight was carried on for two days and in that time the animal had decidedly the best of the game. The boat is now anchored off the William street grain wharves. The orang-outang is in a strong cage, but the sailors are still applying liniment to their various bruises, contusions and lacerations. The animal was given to Isaac Erb, captain of the schooner, while the boat was loading at Charleston. The crew named him "Teddy."

Teddy's dignity was injured by a sailor feeding him a piece of cake coated with red pepper. The battle immediately began. With a scream of rage the orang-outang picked up a piece of lumber. The sailor who had played the joke sought refuge at the masthead, with the orang-outang close on his heels. Before the man could escape the enraged animal had swung the stick across the seaman's head. The members of the crew spent the remainder of the day in trying to navigate the ship and dodge the orang-outang. The animal had decidedly the best of the various encounters. The crew gathered in a body and tried to rush the brute, but Teddy stood his ground with a heavy pole. The seamen lost their nerve and decided to use strategy. Teddy refused to be caught by any sugar-coated inducements.

For two days the orang-outang ruled the comings and the goings of the crew. They were kept on a constant move and the man at the wheel was often compelled to leave his post and seek shelter in the hold. On the third day, however, Teddy got tangled in some ropes. The sailors saw their opportunity and sprang upon him before he could extricate himself.

ANGRY ITALIANS STORM HOSPITAL

State Constabulary and Police Are Called Out to Guard the Greensburg Institution.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

GREENSBURG, PA., March 11.—Infuriated at being refused admittance to the Westmoreland hospital, over 100 Italians and Austrians, employed by the American Pipe Manufacturing company in the construction of the Pennsylvania railroad water line from Indian Creek to Pittsburgh, rioted about the hospital for several hours last night. The entire police force and a squad from Troop A of the state constabulary were called out and it was not until seven of the leaders had been placed in jail that the disturbance ceased.

The foreigners came to Greensburg from their camp at Radebaugh to visit fellow countrymen who had been injured in the wrecking of the work train on the County House branch. Twenty-one of the injured are still in the hospital, every ward being crowded and no visitors have been allowed since Thursday. When the first of the foreigners had been refused admittance they returned to their camp at Radebaugh and several hours later over 100 of them appeared on the hospital grounds. Attempts were made to force the doors and missiles were hurled against the building. A hurry call was sent to the police station and the officers were able to guard the doors until a squad from the state constabulary arrived.

The leaders of the rioters were taken to jail and have been held for court on the charges of inciting riot and disorderly conduct.

TO GUARD LEGATION.

British Artillerymen Are Sent to Pekin Though Chinese Deny Prospect of Trouble There.

LONDON, March 12.—The correspondent of the Tribune at Hongkong says that Captain Ward, commanding a detachment of 40 artillerymen, will proceed to Pekin at the end of the month to guard the British legation.

Taotai Wen, the confidential secretary of the viceroy of Canton, said that he did not think that the anti-foreign movement in the south was serious and dismissed the idea of trouble at Pekin. He said that Rear Admiral Train, commander in chief of the United States Asiastic fleet, while lunching with the viceroy ridiculed American action in the far east as being directed against an expected outbreak in China.

SHANGHAI, March 11.—The French gunboat, Olry, and the British training ship Teal have arrived at Nanchang. The Chinese authorities have ordered a special autopsy on the body of the magistrate at Nanchang who stabbed himself or was stabbed by a missionary during the recent riot at that place.

TWO WOMEN MURDERED.

Revolvers Are Employed With Fatal Results by Jealous Husband and an Impatient Fiance.

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—Two women were shot and killed in this city today, one by her husband who was jealous of his wife, and the other by her intended husband, because she would not consent to an immediate marriage. The man who killed his wife is George Johnson, a Norwegian. He and his wife separated after a quarrel, she going to live with a neighbor. Today Johnson called at the house and without saying a word shot her. She died in a few hours. Johnson was cautured tonight after a pistol duel with policemen, in which no one was hurt.

Nex Soiffer, aged 22, wanted to immediately marry Annie Margolies, aged 24 years, but she wanted the wedding delayed until Soiffer could better provide for her. They quarreled and he shot her through the heart.

Soiffer then turned the weapon upon himself and sent a bullet into his head. His condition is critical.

NOTES OF NEARBY TOWNS.

SOMERSET.—The Rev. Peter Vogel, aged 76, pastor of the Somerset Christian church, fell backward while ascending a cellar stairway at his home, sustaining severe injuries, which may prove fatal.

SOMERSET.—Fire destroyed the Beveridge restaurant, the Newton restaurant, and damaged the George Donges block. The loss is estimated at $2,000, covered by insurance.

STEUBENVILLE.—One thousand Hungarians from all parts of the county held a mass meeting here and pledged their services and financial aid to Hungary against Austria. Judge J. A. Mansfield presided. Attorneys Q. C. Brown and J. W. Porter of Steubenville and Dr. Wadislaus Polya of Pittsburgh made addresses.

STEUBENVILLE.—Mrs. May Peterson, aged 22, of Unionport, after several days' suffering with a severe cold, took a dose of poison and died.

KITTANNING.—When "Mickey" Brennen arrived here from Wheeling, W. Va., he was arrested on a charge of killing a police lieutenant at Birmingham, Ala.

KITTANNING.—Percy Starr, a farmer of Rayburn township, found a hollow log filled with opossums. He pulled out and killed 13.

CUMBERLAND.—The Associated Merchants of Cumberland have requested the Cumberland Electric Railway Company and the Cumberland & Westernport Electric Company to establish a regular freight service between points along the line of the railways. President De-Warren H. Reynolds of the Cumberland & Westernport Electric railway stated that his road will comply.

NEW CASTLE.—Nearly every minister in the city preached on temperance, to stir up further interest in the fight against liquor licenses.

LATROBE.—At a special meeting of the school board Herbert A. Klock of East Aurora, N. Y., was chosen principal of the Latrobe public schools.

NEW MARTINSVILLE.—H. A. Shackelford, a blacksmith of Smithfield, has been missing from his home since December 1.

JOHNSTOWN.—John Karns, aged 58, a carpenter of Summerhill, was killed by a train.

KITTANNING.—The two-year-old son of Amos Blystone of Apollo fell into an uncovered well yesterday and was drowned. The body was found floating on top of the water.

BEAVER FALLS.—Thomas Moore of New Brighton and Joseph Reed of this place, got into an altercation in the street and Reed fired at Moore. The ball struck Thomas Downie in the leg. Moore and Reed were arrested. The latter put up a desperate fight and one of his shoulders was dislocated before he was landed in jail.

GREENSBURG.—W. F. Newbauer, aged 27, a clerk at the Pennsylvania Rubber Company's plant at Grapeville, died at his boarding house in Jeannette of ptomaine poisoning. Newbauer, the post-mortem examination showed, had been poisoned from eating canned raspberries at a Jeannette restaurant.

CUMBERLAND.—Paul Minghini, a railroad man of Martinsburg, W. Va., is under arrest on a charge of perjury preferred by Archibald McCoy. February 20 Minghini obtained a license to marry Lillian McCoy, daughter of Archibald McCoy, swearing that the girl was over 18 years old. Her father alleges she is 15. The couple did not get married.

PLACE IN THE CABINET WANTED BY THE SOUTH

McLaurin Suggested for Place, George Meyer to Be New Secretary of Navy.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Recently there have been many expressions of opinion from the south in favor of having a southern man in the cabinet. That section has had no representative in the cabinet since H. A. Herbert of Alabama and Hoke Smith of Georgia retired.

The renewed talk of cabinet changes, the report that Secretary Taft may be appointed a justice of the Supreme court of the United States, that Secretary Hitchcock may retire in the summer, and that Secretary Wilson may give up the Department of agriculture almost any time, has led to considerable discussion of the name of former Senator John L. McLaurin of South Carolina for a place in the cabinet. He is a friend of President Roosevelt and many persons are ready to urge his appointment in the cabinet should there be a change.

George Meyer, American ambassador to Russia, is to be made secretary of the navy to succeed Mr. Bonaparte, some time during next year, when Mr. Bonaparte becomes attorney general in place of Mr. Moody, who retires.

HAS LOST 28 YEARS.

Dr. Byron Mahoney Remembers None of the Events Since 1878 When He Disappeared.

LADOGA, IND., March 11.—(Special.)—In 1878 Dr. Byron Mahoney, one of the most promising young physicians in this section of the state, disappeared. After five years the family became convinced that he was dead. Then Mrs. Mahoney went to Union City, Kas. Believing that if her husband was not dead she had been deserted, she obtained a legal separation. Later she married again and is now the mother of six children.

Saturday a well-dressed man whose hair was sprinkled with white, stepped from a Monon train at the Ladoga depot. No one recognized him and he looked about in complete bewilderment. The man inquired for Dr. J. C. Mahoney, and was taken to his home. Neither recognized the other.

Dr. J. C. Mahoney was finally convinced that his long missing brother Byron had returned. When came the discovery that the man's mind was an absolute blank as far as the past was concerned. About his first request was to see his "little boy," who was three years old when Dr. Mahoney disappeared from Ladoga 28 years ago, and he seemed unable to understand that his "little boy" is now a man, 31 years old. Dr. J. C. Mahoney will keep his brother at his home, and give him treatment in the hope of restoring his mind.

AGREEING AT ALGECIRAS.

Harmony Is Reached on Bank Question and Police Settlement Seems Near.

ALGECIRAS, March 11.—The committee on reaction having in charge the adjustment of the remaining differences between France and Germany over the Moroccan police question and the question of the bank, assembled twice today. On the bank question an agreement was reached on every point except the allotment of the capital, which will probably be left to the decision of the conference.

The police question was not touched during the sittings today. The delegates, however, went over the situation informally and a feeling of confidence reigns among the representatives of the neutral powers that a settlement of the question will be reached within a week.

WOUNDS MEMBERS OF POSSE.

Isaac Winder Is Reported to Have Been Discovered in a Cave Near Newbridge.

YORK, PA., March 11.—(Special.)—Isaac Winder, the murderer, who escaped from the Towson jail last Monday had been surrounded in a cave in the vicinity of Newbridgeville, about 22 miles from this city. The information of the discovery of Winder was received by the detective bureau of this city about 5 o'clock this evening. It is said that the negro is surrounded by a posse of eight men.

It was also rumored that two of this number had been shot by Winder, who, it is said, is armed with a rifle. Chief of Detectives Charles S. White and four of his men left tonight to assist in the capture of Winder.

SNOWSTORM IN OHIO.

Reports State the Fall Has Been the Heaviest Since the Winter of 1893.

CLEVELAND, O., March 11.—A heavy snow fell, which began here early today has continued up to midnight. Reports from Springfield and other towns in the state say the amount of snowfall reached a depth of ten inches, being the heaviest since the winter of 1893.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 11.—(Special.)—A snowstorm, which threatened to tie up traffic between Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Youngstown and Ashtabula, started late this afternoon and is increasing in vigor. Late tonight the indications are that the telegraph and telephone service will be interrupted. The street cars in the city are badly crippled.

CHILD DRINKS POISON.

Cupful of Fluid Intended for Family Is Found on Table—Girl Is Dead.

WHEELING, W. VA., March 11.—(Special.)—Poison, doubtless meant for the whole family, killed the little daughter of Alfred Witzburger today. It was found in a teacup on the family table.

The child drank the fluid without the knowledge of the family that it contained poisonous and died a few minutes afterward. The police were promptly notified of the case and are conducting an investigation.

May Get Carnegie Hero Medal.

WILKES-BARRE, PA., March 11.—(Special.)—George W. Braun, a young man living at White Haven, near here, is, his friends say, to be rewarded by the managers of the Carnegie hero fund. He saved the lives of two women who were drowning in the Lehigh river, near White Haven, last summer, at the risk of his own life. An agent of the hero fund has been investigating here.

RIVERMAN WALKS TO WATERY GRAVE

"Pine Apple Jack" Delaney Steps from Deck of Boat Into the River.

OTHER SUDDEN DEATHS

John Delaney, a river fireman, known on all the rivers between Pittsburgh and the gulf as "Pineapple Jack," walked off the deck of the towboat Rival early yesterday morning and went to the bottom of the Ohio river opposite the penitentiary. Delaney had been about the Water street saloons all Saturday evening and at midnight went aboard the boat. He was wandering about in an intoxicated condition when the Rival started down stream, light, to bring up some empties from Sewickley. He refused to go to bed, and when the boat was about a mile above Davis Island dam he walked under the life line and plunged into the stream. The boat was stopped immediately and a search was made for the missing fireman, but he never came to the surface. It is thought the man's home is in Clinton, Ia.

Mrs. Barbara Koch, aged 58, of Allen avenue, died last night of heart failure in the candy store of Mrs. Rose Marco, 137 South Twelfth street.

Mrs. Christiana Brauer, aged 70, a widow, living at 993 Ridge avenue, Allegheny, died yesterday of injuries received last Wednesday when she fell down a stairway.

J. Arthur Pehl, aged 13, son of John Pehl of 31 Camp avenue, Duquesne, died yesterday morning at the Allegheny General hospital. He was crushed by a train at Oliver station on the P., V. & C. railroad on Saturday.

John Woodka of 530 Third avenue, Homestead, died at Mercy hospital last evening. He was employed at the Homestead steel works, where on March 3, he was struck on the head by a swinging crane.

Edward Mills, a negro, died of consumption at the Western penitentiary last evening.

BRAVE MARCH STORM TO GET GRAND OPERA SEATS

Line of Prospective Purchasers Begins to Form at Midnight in Crush for Tickets.

Braving the March storm themselves, or employing a newsboy or telegraph messenger to stand in line for them, Pittsburgh people showed their interest in grand opera by beginning to gather in front of the Nixon theater at midnight, although the sale of seats does not begin until 9 o'clock this morning. When midnight came it found a crowd of perhaps 50 boys and men there, and the line grew steadily as the hour for opening approached.

Manager Thomas F. Kirk, Jr., of the Nixon has made ample arrangements for handling the crush that will surely come when the sale begins. The large room to the right of the entrance has been fitted up and the ticket windows are so placed that the line may enter at one door and pass out another, thus avoiding crowding as much as possible. Extra help has been secured so that patrons may be served rapidly. If expectations are realized, the first day's sale will amount to about $11,000, and from the interest shown there is no doubt of the success of the season. Pittsburgh is one of the three cities in the country, outside of New York, which supports grand opera for a week's run, and the interest is not confined merely to the wealthy.

WILLIAM WILSON DEAD.

One of Allegheny's Oldest and Most Prominent Citizens Expires from Apoplexy.

William Wilson, one of Allegheny's oldest and most prominent citizens, died at his home, East Diamond and Ohio streets, at 11:30 o'clock last night. He had been troubled during most of the winter with a bad cold, and at 11 o'clock Wednesday night was stricken with an attack of apoplexy from which he never recovered. He was born in the County Armagh, Ireland, June 9, 1834. He came with his parents to America in 1840 and settled in Cadiz, O. A few years later the family came to Allegheny, settling in Rebecca street, within a few doors of Henry Phipps and Andrew Carnegie. The three men soon became good friends.

Mr. Wilson engaged in the livery business with his brothers John and Alexander Wilson. This stable was on the present site of the postoffice. They continued in business until 1891, when the three brothers retired.

Mr. Wilson was married to Miss Emily Pearson, a daughter of John Pearson. She died 20 years ago. When a child two weeks old Mr. Wilson's wife was brought to the house in which Mr. Wilson died and in which he has lived since 1865. He leaves a fortune of over half a million dollars, and owned property all over the North Side. He was a director in the Ben Franklin Insurance Company and also in the Dollar Savings Fund and Trust Company of Allegheny. He is survived by two sons, Nelson C. and Aubury Wilson, and one daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Mehard of New Castle.

Bride Stars Fire With Oil.

ALTOONA, PA., March 11.—(Special.)—Mrs. Mary Digby, aged 24, a bride of a few weeks, poured kerosene into a kitchen range containing live coals this morning. In the explosion which followed her clothes caught fire, burning her so badly about the face and body that she cannot recover. Firemen rescued her and saved the house from destruction.

Y. M. C. A. Convention Adjourns.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., March 11.—The interstate convention of the Young Men's Christian association, which has been in session since Thursday, with delegates from West Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia, closed tonight, after a successful meeting. Ferdinand Schievera of New York, was the principal speaker today.

DEATHS IN NEARBY TOWNS.

CONNELLSVILLE—William H. Gorman, aged 28, formerly of McKeesport, is dead at his home in Moyer. His widow and four children survive.

NEW MARTINSVILLE—Samuel Cox, aged 74, who lived on a farm for 45 years, is dead. His widow and a son survive.

LATROBE—Mrs. Lucinda Brallier, aged 68, is dead at her home in Indiana. She was the mother of Dr. John K. Brallier of this place. Five children survive.

NEW MARTINSVILLE, O.—Nicholas Keehler of Woodsfield, O., is dead. He was born in Germany in 1824. He is survived by his widow.

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. VA.—George Harris, aged 60, familiarly known throughout the oil fields of West Virginia and Pennsylvania as "Casing George," died this morning at Wileyville. He was a civil war veteran. Philip G. Eler Post, G. A. R., of this city will have charge of the funeral.

CONNELLSVILLE—George Bishop, aged 72, is dead at his home here of pneumonia. He leaves these children: John, William A., Charles H. and A. W. Bishop and Mrs. Grant Myers of Fayette county, and Samuel Bishop of Wilmerding.

ROCHESTER—Mrs. Edward M. Brobeck, aged 23, is dead. She is survived by her husband and two children.

ROCHESTER—Joseph Householder, aged 23, a glassworker and well-known local baseball player, is dead at his home of consumption.

ROCHESTER—Miss Nora Blanche, aged 19, daughter of Elmer Swisler, is dead of consumption.

MONACA—Miss Laura V. Winkle, aged 15, daughter of Mark Winkle, died of consumption.

NEW CASTLE—Matthew R. Garvin, a civil war veteran, is dead. He was born in Beaver county 80 years ago. He served in Company K of the famous Roundhead regiment, and was wounded at the battle of North Ann river. He was a rural mail carrier and covered his route yesterday, apparently in his usual health. He is survived by his widow and two children, Robert S. and Jean Garvin.

HATERS OF JEWS DENOUNCE WITTE

League of Russian People Appeals for Massacre of Hebrews.

CLASS HATRED IS INCITED

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, March 11.—Some of the reactionary organizations are pushing the agitation against the radical elements to a dangerous point. Today a "league of the Russian people" held a service in the Alexanderevsky monastery to celebrate the manifesto of March 8 as a victory for the old regime. Later at the Horse Guard Menage, the fighting society of the same organization, a public meeting listened to inflammatory speeches by Dr. Doubrovin and Prof. Nickolsky, extremist leaders, who openly summoned their followers, the Black Hundreds, to kill the Jews and hang Count Witte.

Prince Mestchersky, editor of the Grazdanin, who supported the Witte section, charges the bureaucracy with having sympathy with the court clique which is opposing the plans of the cabinet and with inciting class hatred and strikes, with the purpose of making the national assembly a failure. He quotes Prof. Nickolsky as declaring that friends of the autocracy should see that a number of revolutionaries are elected in order to furnish an excuse for dispersing the national assembly with bayonets.

Prince Meistchersky prints a proclamation against the Jews which, he asserts, was printed in the typography of the police master with the approval of the censor and widely distributed. The proclamation, which is addressed to workmen and peasants, declares that the authors of Russia's misfortune are the Jews, who throughout the world hate Russia, and want to rob the peasants of their land and make them their slaves, "unfrock the priests and turn the churches into Jewish stables and pig sties." The proclamation also asserts that the Armenians, English and Germans want to destroy Russia and divide the country among its enemies. The proclamation calls Count Witte a supporter of the Jews and the chief enemy of the country, and summons the faithful wherever they find Jews to tear them to pieces.

Prince Mestchersky warns the bureaucracy that it is playing a desperate game in arraying class against class, saying: "If today the peasants are incited to slaughter millions of Jews, the Armenians tomorrow may be seized with the mania of murder, and massacres may occur everywhere without regard to race or class."

Another important development was the success of the reactionary elements in wrestling the control of the zemstvos from the hands of the Liberals. The issue was raised by the zemstvos upon the demand of the federal administration in the provinces to discharge doctors, teachers, agricultural experts and other employes of zemstvos suspected of revolutionary tendencies or activity. At Moscow the Liberals made a hard fight to protect the employes, but the reactionaries, under the leadership of M. Guchkoff were victorious, whereupon 30 liberals resigned. At Toula the struggle was so bitter that two challenges to duels were exchanged, one of them between Prince Dolgoroukoff and Prince Ourussoff.

HICCOUGHS NINE MONTHS.

Fifty Doctors Visit Girl Who Was Seized With Affliction After Seeing an Accident.

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—(Special.)—In response to the call for medical aid more than 50 local physicians went today to see Mary Boshotesky, aged 15, who for nine months has been suffering from hiccoughs and has been to nearly every hospital in the city without finding relief from the affliction, which is slowly wasting her vitality.

The hiccoughs, which are puzzling the doctors, came as the result of a tragedy of which Mary was the unwilling witness. She saw a little child run over and killed by a trolley car, and she fainted. On recovering consciousness the girl was seized with nervous hysteria, and this was succeeded by a paroxysm of hiccoughs. From that day to this the hiccoughs baffled all the efforts of the physicians who have attended her.

Mayor Resigns Under Fire.

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. VA., March 11.—(Special.)—Mayor B. M. Welsh and Night Policeman A. E. Patterson resigned last night, following reports that gambling rooms have been allowed to flourish. Council immediately elected M. F. Powers mayor. It is charged that proprietors of gambling rooms were required to pay for the privilege of maintaining their places. Today the lid was on tight.

Pittsburghers in New Company.

SHARON, PA., March 11.—(Special.)—Sharon, South Sharon and Pittsburgh capitalists will build an amusement park and incorporate a new town two miles southwest of Sharon. The town will be known as Roseville. An artificial lake, scenic railway, dancing pavilion, roller coaster and toboggan will be among the features. The company has $75,000 and no stock will be sold.

Woman Is Badly Injured by Bulldog.

WEST CHESTER, PA., March 11.—(Special.)—Mrs. Taylor Goodly of this place, was terribly injured this afternoon by a large pet bulldog and is in a serious condition in the Chester County hospital. The animal suddenly attacked her while she was walking through a room and tore flesh from her cheek.

HARPERS BOOKS

The Genius

A stirring romance, by Margaret Potter, based on the life of a famous Russian composer—the sensitive, gifted son of a powerful, iron-handed government despot. His career is a strange and deeply moving tale of shifting fortunes, dramatic episodes and final artistic triumphs.

The novel follows the hero into the high social and military circles to which he was born; into musical society, to which his art led him and into that of plotting revolutionists, where he fell by chance. Each shifting scene has an intense dramatic interest, and the whole is a striking presentation of the artistic temperament in its most interesting phases.

HARPER & BROTHERS.

MODERN ARABIC NOW ACCESSIBLE

Pittsburgh Lawyer Compiles a Handbook for Use of Travelers to Lands of Islam.

WANT NEVER FILLED BEFORE

Dwight Elmendorf, the traveler-lecturer remarked at Carnegie music hall recently that he knew of no handbook on the modern Arabic, that is the Arabic spoken on the southern Mediterranean littoral, in Egypt and in Syria. A few days later Mr. Elmendorf was surprised to receive a copy of just such a handbook. Some one in the audience knew that Bruce Millard, the attorney, had compiled a book on Arabic and so he procured a copy and sent it to Mr. Elmendorf.

The koran forbids changes in the language, and so today literary effusions are written in the language of the koran. He could not better the genius of speech, and so in the many centuries that have elapsed since Mohammed wrote the koran the live tongue has changed, so that the modern Arab, uneducated, does not understand the koran if read to him in the ancient language. Consequently, when Mr. Elmendorf deplored the lack of a book on modern Arabic, he meant the Arabic which the pyramid-climber hears, the Arabic which the Tunisian boatmen chatter at the ships side, the Arabic which the Moroccan envoys at Algeciras exchange with one another, although the Moroccan tongue has an infusion of Berber elements, which, by the way, Mr. Millard explains in his little book.

When Mr. Millard took his manuscript to his Parisian publishers they had other ideas. They thought the plan all well enough, but they suggested a sort of guide book, with a collection of phrases. Mr. Millard protested that his plan was the better, in the light of his experience and that of hundreds of other travelers. The literary man of the publishing house reached into a drawer and drew out a letter, which he handed to the publisher. It was from a Frenchman who lived in Algiers. He wanted to know if the house could tell him of a book he could consult to learn something of Arabic so as to make himself understood.

"This," said the professor, laying his hand on the manuscript, "seems to be just the thing." And so the publishers agreed to get out the book.

Mr. Millard got the consignment of books the other day. The preface is in French and the equivalents of the Arabic words and phrases are given in French and the English. On the title page Mr. Millard says the book was compiled "with the collaboration of William Catzeflis." Mr. Catzeflis is a Syrian resident of Pittsburgh. The title is "L'Arabe Parle," "Spoken Arabic."

It makes no pretension to scientific excellence. It is not an attempt to teach the modern Arabic for writing purposes. It is to enable travelers or foreign dwellers in Arabic-speaking countries to acquire a knowledge of the language for practical uses and a basis on which conversation with the native becomes easier.

Mr. Millard has made several trips to the Arabic-speaking countries. In his travels he jotted down all the phrases and words he heard, inquired about others he wanted to know, and in Pittsburgh consulted many times with Catzeflis. The result of this work of several years is embodied in the book. The work covers 2,500 words, and when it is considered that a man may make himself understood in any modern language for all practical purposes with about 500 words, it can be realized what advantage a man possesses who has learned five times as many words or can turn to them at any time on his journeys.

SHOW OF CINERARIAS.

Dazzling Display of Color Delights Visitors to the Phipps Conservatories in Schenley Park.

Interest in the Schenley park conservatories yesterday centered in the annual show of the cinerarias in the Phipps conservatories. That flower has more different shades than any other known plant, and the intermingling of blue, red and lavender, makes an unrivaled color scheme. Superintendent Burke has arranged to have the Easter flower show in the conservatories extend over three Sundays. The opening day will be on Palm Sunday, the main show will be on Easter Sunday, followed by a closing exhibition on the following Sunday.

Organist W. K. Steiner gave the seven hundred and fifty-fourth recital in the Carnegie hall. His rendition of the overture, "Sakuntala," a love story with musical setting by Goldmark, delighted the large audience. The closing recitals of the present season will be given next Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon, the organist being Wilhelm Middleschulte of Chicago. About 1,200 people viewed the paintings in the Carnegie art galleries yesterday.

A Zebo calf, which was born last Tuesday, was the attraction in the Highland park zoo. The new arrival is a member of the family of the sacred cow of India, which was brought to the zoo from that country about two years ago.

BEAT HASTY RETREAT WHEN AGULES FLASHES WEAPON

Bronislaw Agules had a murderous-looking weapon in his hand when an officer brought up with him in Brady street Saturday night. It comprised a piece of rubber hose about two feet long, stuffed with pieces of scrap iron. Woe betide the man who stopped a blow from that weapon. That is the way two men evidently fell whom Agules is alleged to have been chasing. Spectators say the men were willing to fight until Agules brought his stuffed club into action, and then they ran away in terror. Magistrate Kirby took the fierceness out of Agules with a fine of $5 and costs.

CLAIMS HE WAS ROBBED INSTEAD OF THE ROBBER

"I'm not the robber, judge. I'm the man who was robbed," said Gust Link at the Central station hearings yesterday morning. He had been arrested about 3 o'clock in the morning on the Washington street bridge on suspicion of being a hold-up man. Link protested that instead of being a robber he was a "robbee," and told a story of how a couple of men had gone through him. Inasmuch as his watch and a sum of money were found in his pockets the magistrate thought there was ground for doubting his story, and fined him $10 and costs.

Says House Is Resort for Thieves.

Detectives Egan and Cole yesterday rounded up 11 men in a house which is said to be a hatchery for thieves and hold-up men. The detectives assert the men gather there and plan burglaries and hold-ups. All were charged with vagrancy. The house is at 520 Wylie avenue. Eight of the men were fined $10 and costs. The other three insisted that they have steady jobs and work every day and they were discharged.

Corner Loafers Must Go.

Officer Edward Kelly was detailed by Inspector Robinson yesterday to clean up certain corners in the hill district of Sunday corner loafers. He arrested a total of 19 about the court house, Sixth and Wylie avenues and Fifth avenue and Tunnel street.

Negro Is Too Well Heeled.

Charles Jackson, a negro, living in Jones avenue, was fined $5 and costs by Magistrate Moke yesterday morning for threatening to kill his wife. A loaded revolver and a razor was found on him when he was arrested.

MONK SHOWS CONTEMPT FOR HISTORICAL MOTTO

Allegheny Man Measures His Muscle Against the Vaunted Strength of Unity of Forces as He Understands It.

Historical mottoes do not clog the brain of Frank Monk, an Alleghenian. His discovery of one of them, and the subsequent train of thought created by pondering upon it, got Monk into trouble. Since settling with Magistrate Abernathey at the North Side Central station he has different views.

In an East Ohio street saloon on Saturday night Monk and several others commenced the examination of their silver money after the bartender had scornfully pushed back a tin dollar that one of the party had inadvertantly accepted somewhere. Besides being light and dull of color this spurious piece was not inscribed with the adage: "United we stand—divided we fall." Perhaps Monk had seen that before, but had never given it a second thought. The incident brought about a discussion of the potency of united forces and someone quoted that similar saying: "In union there is strength."

This stuck in Monk's mind, and the spirits he had imbibed played capers with his order of regular thinking. He was walking along Second street when he stopped suddenly, his attention arrested by a sign. It read:

"Bakers' Union."

Monk felt his muscles and looked at the sign again. The lettering was in gold on heavy plate-glass in the front of 606 Second street. That sign offended him and to show his contempt for the strength there is in union he sent his clenched fist crashing through that window. Policeman Hugh Hutton left his beat to accompany Monk to the lockup where he left $7.95 with the sergeant yesterday morning.

SENTIMENT IS AGAINST THE WINDSHIELD MARKS

This Feeling May Cause All Freak Records to Be Taken Off the Books.

The sentiment is strong now that freak marks, wind shield record, made by light harness stars, be thrown out. By the recent action of the National Trotting association in passing a rule forbidding the use of wind or dirt shields in future record-making attempts, considerable discussion has been aroused over the subject.

In case the freak records are thrown out there will be no two-minute trotter. Instead of Lou Dillon having a record of 1:58¾, her mark will be 2:01. In the pacing division Dan Patch will only have a mark of 1:58¾, and his record of 1:55¼ will go off the books.

M. W. Savage, the owner of Dan Patch and Cresceus, is not in favor of the change proposed. James V. Gatcomb, owner of Audobon Boy, 1:59¼, favors such a change. It is urged that a change would prove an incentive for breeders to go after new marks.

THREE BOYS GO TO JAIL.

Play Unsophisticated Farm Lads, but Come to Grief.

Joseph Splane, Harry Plath and John Sweeney, all 16 years old, who were arrested in East Liberty Saturday afternoon, while playing the role of unsophisticated country hunkins who took $5 and $10 bills from unsuspecting housewives in payment for eggs and forgot to bring back the change, were committed to jail yesterday morning by Magistrate Negley in default of $500 bail.

The boys, at the hearing, made a full confession of how they have been short-changing women in the vicinity of East Liberty for the past month. They told of many cases that had never been reported to the police. Two of the boys took their commitment to jail unconcernedly, but Splane, the smallest of the three, broke down and cried at the prospect of being locked up.

Crowd at Alvin Theater Service.

A largely attended congregational song service was held yesterday afternoon at the Alvin theater, at which the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young of the Second Presbyterian church preached on "Saving." The singing was under the direction of Tall Esen Morgan. Dr. Young urged upon his audience the necessity of putting by in prosperous times something for a "rainy day."

THOMAS BUILDING THREE VANDERBILT RACE CARS

Says That He Did Not Get a Square Deal in Last Year's Contest.

E. R. Thomas, who is wintering in southern California, announced today that he is building three racing motor cars for the purpose of winning the Vanderbilt cup this year. He said that if he loses the race it will cost him $40,000 and if he wins, $25,000 for the driver of the winning car.

When the announcement was made he telegraphed at the same time to John Farson, president of the Automobile Club of America, that he would demand another chairman of the race commission in place of Robert Lee Morrell. As was mentioned in yesterday's Gazette, Jefferson deMont Thompson has been named for the place, so Mr. Thomas' wish in this regard has already been complied with.

The reason that a change was asked to head the Vanderbilt cup commission is that exception was taken because the Thomas car last year was not allowed to compete, after qualifying. Mr. Thomas charges that Mr. Morrell is interested in the Locomobile company as stockholder.

WHITE GIRLS AND CHINAMEN FALL INTO POLICE NET

It was a rather conglomerated assemblage that fell into the police net spread at 316 Grant street yesterday. The catch comprised Lillian Smith and two other white girls, with three Chinamen as companions. They were having a tea party. The men seemed ashamed that they had been caught. Lillian Smith and her girl friends were each fined $100 and costs. The Chinamen, probably because of the remorse, were left off with fines of $10 and costs.

Oppose Erection of Telephone Pole.

Employes of a telephone company were erecting a telephone pole on Logan street Saturday evening when, they say, their labors were hampered by Victor and T. Silverman, E. Kumsky and Phillip Jacob, who are said to have objected to the pole going up. A policeman arrested the quartet and each paid $5 and costs.

Captures Jack the Peeper.

"Jack the Peeper" has been captured. He was operating on South Twenty-second street Saturday night. He gave his name as Jack Buski, but could not tell where he lived. He was fined $25 with the alternative of 60 days in the workhouse, but he will probably be sent to Marshalsea, as he appears to be demented.

Sunday Gazette Gives to Readers Another New and Pleasing Feature

Always adding features which will meet with the approval and still further contribute to the entertainment of its readers, The Gazette yesterday inaugurated its half-tone illustrated section, a departure which sprang into popularity at its birth. The Sunday Gazette illustrated section has a double reason for the friends which it made. It not only knows the art of photography reproduction to a high degree, but the subjects of the illustrations are gathered from Pittsburgh and the surrounding districts, faces and scenes which are familiar to thousands of Gazette readers. The Sunday half-tone illustrated section has come to stay. The excellence of the initial number will even be improved upon, and that is making a rather large claim, for no Sunday paper gives to its readers an illustrated section which will stand on an equal plane with that issued with yesterday's Gazette.

Other departments of The Sunday Gazette were up to their usual high standard. The Worker's Magazine was filled with more of those articles in which the industrial army of the Pittsburgh district is vitally interested. These included not only specially written articles by writers of prominence in the literary field, but shorter stories which dealt particularly with matters here at home. President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor clears up, in his answers to queries, many problems in regard to the Chinese boycott. The plumbers are again opposing a charter for the steamfitters, and the executive council of the American Federation meets in Washington next Monday to talk it over. The weekly reports of the lodges of the Amalgamated association are complete and concise, and are of interest to very many who work in the mill. The painters are demanding a uniform rate in Allegheny county, and a little story tells of the progress of their contention. Machinists are of the opinion that they are kept too long at the bench, and an article on the subject deals with their demand for shorter hours. These are but a few. Get a paper and look over the rest. It will be time well spent.

In the Home Journal section are articles and suggestions of inestimable value to housekeepers, as well as short stories just suited to the feminine taste. The Comic section has its usual number of side-splitters. Little Nemo keeps up his efforts to get into Slumberland, and Mr. Coon learns something about St. Patrick and snakes which had never occurred to him before.

The Black Goods That Priestley Makes.

The black goods that Priestley makes are just as much of a household phrase to women as "The House That Jack Built" is a household phrase to little children.

There are black goods and black goods, but Priestley's name on the selvedge of a piece of black material is all that a woman requires in the matter of a guarantee.

Priestley not only has a name for weaving the best blacks, but he also has the distinction of first introducing cravenetted cloth, which is nothing more than cloth that is shower-proof.

This store enjoys the distinction of carrying every good weave that Priestley makes, and we dare say we are the largest sellers of his goods in Western Pennsylvania. By way of schedule we cite one of the all-wool black stuffs from Priestley's Bradford (England) Mills now in stock.

Priestley's All-Wool Cravenette Serges, $1.50 and up to $2.00.
Priestley's Cravenetted Cheviots, $1.00 a yard and up to $2.50.
Priestley's All-Wool London Voiles, $1.25 and up to $2.00.
Priestley's All-Wool Gypsy Cloth, $1.00 a yard.
Priestley's All-Wool Taffeta Cloth, $1.00 a yard and up to $2.50.
Priestley's All-Wool Crepe de Chine, $1.25 a yard and up to $2.50.
Priestley's All-Wool Megnonetta Suiting, $1.00 a yard.
Priestley's All-Wool Panama Suitings, $1.25 to $1.50 a yard.
Priestley's Silk-and-Wool Henrietta Cloth, $1.50 to $2.00.
Priestley's Silk-and-Wool Melrose Cloth, $1.50 a yard to $2.00.
Priestley's Silk-and-Wool Crepe Cloth, $1.50 a yard to $2.00.
Priestley's Silk-and-Wool Tamise Cloth, $1.25 a yard to $1.50.
Priestley's Silk-and-Wool Ciolsette, $1.50 a yard to $2.00.
Priestley's Mohair Rexana, $1.25 a yard to $1.50.
Priestley's Chiffon Mohair, 50c a yard to $2.00.
Priestley's Mohair Sicilian, 75c a yard to $2.00.

While Priestley does not manufacture the crepe undermentioned, his firm controls the output of it, and we mention it in connection with the above as an exceptional number in black crepe.

Samuel Courtauld Black Crepes—an elegant material for the fashionable crepe costume—$2.00 a yard and up to $10.00.

Women's New $15.00 to $18.00 Hats, Today $10.00.

Our Millinery Department presents the appearance of budding Spring. There is a beautiful display of distinctive styles in new Spring hats.

In no one line are we stronger than in our exhibit of hats for $10.00—not $10.00 hats, but hats worth from $15.00 to $18.00 for $10.00.

Fresh from the deft fingers of our best designers come these pretty Spring hats, each model tastefully typifying the newest ideas from Paris. Many arrangements of trimmings, such as dainty combinations of flowers, ribbons used to advantage, as well as quills—altogether as chic hats as women of fashion could suggest or desire.

They are neat chips, new straws, Neapolitans and fancy straw braids, effectively twisted and just as effectively trimmed.

As for colors, here are some of them: Alice blue, queen's gray, old rose and lots of other popular tones, as well as the heavier shades of gunmetal, bronze, together with black and black and white.

Jot it down, $10.00 instead of $15.00 and $18.00.

Women's New Voile Suits.

Prices Range from $45.00 Up to $110.00.

Voile tailored Suits are here, made up in a charming array of styles and shades. Voiles in plain black and navy blue are to be used a great deal, but the demand for chiffon voiles in high and odd colors is growing apace. The makers are having a great deal of trouble in procuring this weave.

We are in the enviable position of being ready to show suits of chiffon voile in white, old rose, Alice blue, tan, gray, reseda green, and the popular plaid and check effects, in black and white, as well as other colors.

All the new Spring styles are ready, the most conspicuous being the blouse and Eton jacket models. Pleats and tucks and shirrings are freely used in different ways. All have some trimmings, some more than others. Pretty vest effects, braids, silks and fine laces and embroideries, cunningly worked up into pretty designs. The skirts include the new circular and gore effects, the full pleated as well.

We have fine suits of Imported Voile, black and colors, for as little as $35.00.

Pressed Glass Sherbets, or Ice Creams, 85c a dozen.

We're going to have a sale today in which all women who are interested in giving afternoon euchre or bridge will be interested.

These pressed glass Sherbets or Ice Creams are footed, they are in colonial styles, and they are beautifully finished.

Our popular price of $1.00 a dozen was very low, indeed, but today we say 85c a dozen.

Sale will be held in center aisle, first floor, West.

New White Dress Cottons.

The white dress cotton part of our main floor, East, is ready to present all the new weaves brought out for Spring and Summer. There are a great many of them. We have not space here to go into detail, but can spare enough to call your attention to several different lines.

New Dotted White Swisses, new striped and checked dimities—both 20c goods—ready at 15c a yard.
New Plain Lawns, new striped and dotted Swisses, new checked and striped Dimities—all 15c and 18c goods—ready at 12½c a yard.
New French Swisses, hand-made dots, and hand-made fancy figures—finest white goods that can be bought—ready for 50c a yard and up to $1.75.
New Dotted Swisses, new Linen Lawns, new Suitings, new Waistings—all popular 35c white goods—ready at 25c a yard.
New Striped and Dotted Swisses, new Plain White Lawns, new Fancy White Madras—all 25c goods—ready at 18c a yard.

Linens of Various Kinds—the Best.

Here's a reference to table linens and to linens for the bed. Any grade of linen sold here is the best of its kind. We handle no linens but what are entitled to wear the badge "Best." We get our linens from the great linen centers of Europe, we get them by sending our expert over there twice a year, that's the reason we sell good linens for less.

64-inch Bleached Table Damask—regular 65c grade—here at 50c a yard.
68-inch Bleached Table Damask—85c and 90c grades—here at 75c a yard.
72 and 81-inch Bleached Table Damask—$1.25 and $1.35 grades—here at $1.00 a yard.
72-inch Bleached Double Satin Damask—$1.75 and $1.85 grades—here at $1.50 a yard.
90x96-inch Hemstitched Linen Sheets—each with an extra row of drawn work—regular $6.00 goods—here at $4.75 a pair.
22½x36-inch Hemstitched Linen Pillow Cases $1.50 goods—here at $1.25 a pair.

A 38c Special and Two 55c Specials in Silks.

This is a digression from our usual course of telling you of a lot of new silks that are generally ready for the first of the week. While we have a splendid collection of newest silks in Spring designs and Spring colors, all priced along figures that are called very popular, we ask special attention this morning to two numbers at 55c, and one at 38c, as follows:

SPECIAL—19-inch Colored Taffeta, very soft finish, the yarn dyed before it is woven, beautiful luster, large range of light and dark colors, including different combinations—55c silks, today 38c
Colored Broche Silks, or some may know them better by striped taffeta—the most correct silk for the shirtwaist suit—an 85c grade—today, a yard 55c
A 21-inch Wide Black Taffeta, something that is extra good for the price—one of the best skirting silks woven—a 75c grade—today, a yard 55c

In this connection we call attention to our 40-inch Black Crepe de Chine—a splendid black—a $1.25 grade that we are selling for the exceptional price of 90c a yard.

New Unmade Robes from Europe.

Our importations of Embroidered and Lingerie Robes represent the finest work of the leading robe makers of Europe. Today we have what may be called an introductory opening and we ask women to see the hand-embroidered robes of handkerchief linen and soft batiste in different colors.

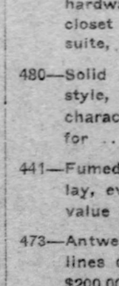
Little Prices for Little Children's Wearables.

The very little money it takes to get nice clothes for babies and for one, two and three-year-old children is illustrated in the following paragraphs. And we would ask mothers to make a mental note of the fact that every last thing required by baby is to be found in our Infant's Department, second floor, East.

Babies' Long and Short Skirts of white domett flannel, 25c.
Infants' Crochet Sacques of wool and white domett flannel, with borders of pink and blue, 25c.
Babies' White Wash Hats and Caps, 25c.
Babies' Long and Short Dresses and Petticoats, both of nainsook, 50c.

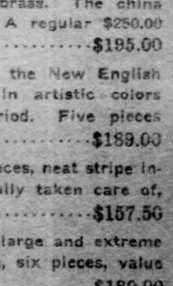
The Hoe—A New Safety Razor.

And We Are Sole Agents for It in Allegheny County.



Today we begin demonstrating the efficiency of the Hoe, and we'll continue daily until further notice. The place to see the razor, and to hear all about it, is Toilet Counter, main aisle, West.

The Hoe is the simplest safety razor ever patented. It has six blades.



We figure out that a man who shaves daily will have a splendid razor ready at a moment's notice that will last him three years. If he only shaves twice a week he will have something that will last him six years.

And no barber with the smoothest hand and the keenest edged razor could give him a more delightful shave.

Now comes the interesting part, the cost that is behind the Hoe.

The illustration shows you the working; we tell you there are six blades, and all you have to pay for the entire outfit is $1.50.

Today's Sale of Dining-Room Furniture.

We told you on Saturday afternoon about the sale of dining-room furniture that begins here today, how we intend carrying it on through the month, how it is to be sold for effective underprices, and now, this morning, we simply call your attention to a very few numbers as a reminder that the sale begins promptly at 8 o'clock.

Monday, March 12, 1906.

Announcement is made of the program for the trade tour of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association through northern Ohio. The start will be made on May 24. Profiting from experience the association will make this jaunt more leisurely than on its previous excursions, that is, giving more time to the towns visited. The territory chosen for this trip is one from which much can be expected, for it is rich and progressive.

There is much in the project for a good roadway between this city and Philadelphia to commend it. It will be possible for a good automobile to make the journey from one city to the other in a day. More benefit and pleasure may be derived, however, from making the distance in three or four days and the road will be of greater value in its local sections. The era of good roads is arriving and every plan that promotes it is deserving of praise.

London is mightily pleased to get over the spring settlements with only one small failure on the stock exchange. Speculative circles there have been enshrouded in deepest gloom for a month. The truth has been brought home that Kaffir stocks were loaded with much water between Cape Town and London. Many invested fortunes have shrunk wofully and conditions on the Rand are worse than before the war. Passing of the settlements, however, gives the hope the worst has been passed.

American agents in Manchuria report the restoration of the province almost complete. The Japanese have aided greatly in bringing about normal peaceful conditions and are now almost ready to finish their evacuation. The Russians have already gone. Much as Manchuria suffered from the waging of the war, in which it was not concerned, it has profited in some particulars from the Japanese invasion and now that it is to be opened to world commerce will speedily advance beyond its previous condition.

Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, Chinese ambassador at Washington, said, in New York on Saturday, his advices from Pekin report everything quiet throughout the empire. Very good. It is within the range of possibility that American military preparations may have assisted in creating this profound quiet. In any event it is good policy for this country to be amply prepared to protect American interests in any emergency. If no emergency arises, so much the better. We will be peaceable and friendly if China pursues the same policy.

Andrew Carnegie has undertaken to finance the spelling reform that proposes to take the ruf tufnes out of the lerning to reed and rite the English langwage. What's the use? There is a charm in the varied orthography of our tongue, a subtle differentiation we would sadly miss if carmine and perusal are both made red. Sympathise as we may with the German settler who complained: "Ven boogie is back, und hoof is back, und sock is back, der tuyfel might larn sich a langwich," there are beauties in our native speech not found in "volapuk."

Pittsburgh exports of nails, wire and pipe continue to show gratifying increase. This region has no rival in the world in the production of these necessities. There are other places of manufacture, but none that can be considered in the same class. These are articles, too, of rapidly increasing demand in many parts of the world, so the growth of the industry is on a firm foundation. The farther steel manufacture is carried toward ultimate form, the more surely is Pittsburgh supremacy assured.

Greensburg had a forcible illustration yesterday of the undesirable character of many present day immigrants. The men who attempted to batter down the doors of the Westmoreland hospital have in them the spirit of turbulence that constantly churns the peace and order of their native lands. Their previous attempt to mob a train crew not responsible for the maiming of their fellows illustrates the same point. Labor is needed in this country, but it will be better to not have it than to have it of that kind. There are too many people of that sort here now.

The Coal Mining Scales.

Not much encouragement can be extracted from the reply of the anthracite coal operators to the miners' demands, unless one may hope for a much more yielding spirit on the part of the miners. The operators refuse to concede any shortening of the day's work, any advance in wages or any official recognition of the union. They propose a renewal for three years of the arrangements made by the Roosevelt strike commission, declaring these conditions the very best they can offer. Referring to the union the operators characterize it as "an organization controlled by a competing industry," presumably meaning that of bituminous coal mining.

We do not pretend to know enough of the actual conditions of the anthracite trade to say whether the operators can afford to do better than they say. The course of prices since the adjustment by the Gray commission affords ground for belief that an additional profit for the operators has been added to the advance in mining cost. This may be more apparent than real. The address of the operators, however, is not couched in conciliatory terms and the reference to the union is needlessly harsh.

On the other hand the miners will make a mistake if they make formal recognition of their union the issue in a strike. The operators have informally recognized the organization and held conference with its representatives. They stand for the right to employ non-union men and against the arbitrary restriction of their operations to such supply of union men as may be available. It will be folly for the miners to quit work and strain the resources of their organization to sustain a claim to a right to dictate to their employers just who they may employ.

Meanwhile Pittsburgh and the Middle West is more keenly interested in the outcome of the pending conference between the miners' organization and the "competing industry" alleged to be in control of it. The bituminous operators have officially recognized the union. For some years they have worked under an interstate agreement with it. Here, however, the main question is one of wages and the union has stubbornly refused to recognize the claim of the operators that competing industry precludes giving an advance. When the convention meets in Indianapolis the anthracite situation may be such as to affect its deliberations. Otherwise the outlook in the bituminous districts is hardly more favorable than in the anthracite region.

An Enviable Record.

While Chicago is chafing under the disgrace of her hold-up record and the reckless disregard of life displayed by the thugs that infest her thoroughfares, another western city is pointing with pride to the activity and alertness of its police force which has rendered the "profession" virtually inocuous. Kansas City is the happy town. The press is discussing the results in congratulatory terms and felicitating the authorities on the vigor and watchfulness with which they have performed their duty. The record of Kansas City points a moral besides providing adornment for a tale. The police statistics show that so far this season there were about 15 cases of highway robbery, and for these 15 crimes 10 men were arrested and convicted. The further and more remarkable statement is made that there was no case of highway robbery in which the culprit was not arrested.

The effect of such vigilance on the part of the police is not only discouraging to that class of criminals who select the highways and the byways of cities for profit, but the arrests and convictions in a measure act as a future safeguard to the people of a community which is advertised as handling highwaymen with such celerity and dispatch. Criminals of this character will not seek such a place for their operations.

Another feature of Kansas City's enviable record is that each of the 10 robbers who were convicted were given exemplary sentences, their terms in the penitentiary ranging from five to ten years. Here the majesty of the law was demonstrated with an impressiveness that could not fail to have its effect on the criminal class of the community. The achievements of the police of Kansas City show what honest and determined officers can do, and at the same time explains the cause of the successful operations of thieves and thugs in those cities that today are complaining of the prevalence of unpunished crimes.

Dr. Eliot's Views.

Dr. Charles Eliot, president of Harvard college has made a valuable contribution to what may be called the literature of discontent, so prevalent during recent years. Dr. Eliot's utterance is more wholesome in tone than the diatribes of the yellow papers and the yellow magazines, for its criticism does not aim so much at destruction of the existing fabric as at improvement in its texture. It is specific in its complaints and positive in its recommendations for betterment. So much of the literature of this subject does not rise above the plain of a pitiful whine because someone has been successful while others have not.

Dr. Eliot protests vigorously against the crime of over-capitalization of enterprises and denounces roundly the issue of stock dividends. In these he finds the sources of the injustices that have bred popular discontent. These practices have been widespread. They have done harm. They should be curbed. Great prejudice has been created against combination of corporations, yclept "trusts." Unless accompanied by over-capitalization these combinations may be said to contain at least as much good as evil. Dr. Eliot, unlike the pessimistic school of scolders makes specific distinction. Instead of howling "calamity" he points his finger at the danger spot.

It is a pity Dr. Eliot has not more imitators among those who feel themselves endowed with a mission to reform the world. His method is in hopeful contrast to that of the socialistic trouble dreamers who tremble so in the darkness of their own souls that they believe it necessary to turn the world topsy-turvy to bring justice to the surface. Most of our public ills are simple enough; for the greater part they oppress none but the greedy; they are curable by simple remedies. This country needs no turning upside down. The best is widely uppermost. The spirit of the pioneers is not dead. At the worst the body politic suffers from a few carbuncles that may be easily lopped off.

Consular Improvement.

Some accession of interest in congress in the subject of consular reform may be caused by the national convention that will open in Washington tomorrow. The convention will be composed of delegates from principal chambers of commerce, boards of trade and like bodies throughout the country. Pittsburgh will have ample representation, the desirability of an improved consular service being well understood here.

During recent years there has been improvement in this branch of the public service. More regard has been shown for fitness in making selections for foreign posts and all agents abroad have been spurred to greater activity in looking after American interests. Despite this fact there is yet much to be desired. The consular reports, even where agents are active and energetic, indicate lack of proper knowledge in many matters.

The purpose of the national convention is not merely to call attention to the weaknesses in the present service, but to urge adoption of laws that will compel further improvement, though future administrations may be less careful about appointments than those in recent years. An established standard is essential to such improvement. Competitive examinations to determine whether applicants measure up to the standard must be a feature. For the remainder it is a matter of requirements and of selective promotion. Advancement of the men who study their business and prove efficiency will become the most powerful influence in improvement of the service. That system will serve to take the round pegs out of the square holes and will afford the strongest incentive to the young men to accomplish something.

Former Chief Engineer Wallace now declares in favor of immediate application of the contract system to the construction of the Panama canal. His views are set forth pithily in Engineering Magazine and once, at least, Wallace is right.

While the railroads show no disposition to relinquish voluntarily the $10 deposit there is a growing sentiment favorable to a compulsory restitution law.

Arizona has celebrated the amendment to the statehood bill in a manner that should convince the dullest she is not ready for statehood.

Nothing as attractive as the Sunday Gazette's half-tone section has ever been seen in Pittsburgh newspaperdom.

Establishment of city hall in the present court house would, at least, bring the tax collectors close together.

Paper handkerchiefs are recommended for consumptives, a better protection to the public on their domiciles.

All of the Irish factions are getting together—not in the old-fashioned way, with shillelahs.

Mark Twain has been suggested for United States senator. Too interesting by half.

Indian territory is by no means the less promising half of the state of Oklahoma.

Apparently the French cabinet crisis is the result of "shooting up" the churches.

Manchuria is attracting less attention than a year ago, but is deserving of more.

We shall soon know if there is to be a strike among the coal miners.

Ought to Be Capital Crime.

The fact that four men were caught in New Jersey in the act of attempting to wreck a train, and that they confessed this was their sixth attempt, emphasizes the advisability of including train-wrecking among capital crimes. In both arson and train-wrecking the death of so many and in such a horrible probability of torture is knowingly risked that the self-defense of society seems to require that fiends capable of such a crime should be put forever beyond the chance of ever renewing the attempt. Men of this caliber are on the plane of dangerous wild beasts and should receive the treatment of such.—Baltimore American.

THE HOPEFUL SONG.

If I could only sing a little song
Bearing no message deep or marvelous,
But breathing love and heart's ease, or the lang
Sad nights when death has come to sit by us—
If lips but trembled while the dim eye read,
Or parted, smiling, when the cadence fell
Then I would deem my labor comforted;
Then would I deem my song and singing well.

If I could only voice a little hope,
A little way out of the dark despair,
Though it be found through tears, with hands that grope,
For hearts gone lonely for lost lips and hair—
If some one sometimes laid my verse away
(Oh, very seldom!) just to overspell,
When the mood comes—ah, that were riches pay!
Then would I deem my song and singing well.

Quiet Observations on Ways of the World

An Interesting Run Up the Sound Through Hell Gate to Boston.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

Before you quit New York, or as you are quitting it, you should take a run through Hell Gate.

At the present time it isn't all its name suggests, but there is enough of the old conditions left to account for the name the narrow East river pass bears.

From the Battery, which corresponds to the Point in Pittsburgh, up the East river, which seperates Brooklyn from New York as the Monongahela river separates the South Side from Pittsburgh, the channel is quite wide where the two Brooklyn bridges cross, but after passing the navy yard it begins to narrow, with an occasional boulder peeking above the surface.

Blackwells island, which is devoted mainly to prisons and municipal hospitals, is nothing more than a boulder a mile or more in length and from 100 to 200 feet wide, possibly more at some points.

* * *

At the head of this island Hell Gate begins, and so narrow is the channel that at some places one could almost jump to the shore. On the other side rocks bob up here and there, and swaying poles mark channels for light craft.

They will tell you that a good while ago the main channel was marked in the same way and, as a boatman put it, it was as crooked as a dog's hind leg.

As boats grow larger and larger, more and more of the submarine boulders were blasted and the pieces tumbled into deep crevices, some of which were 100 feet and more in depth.

Finally the national government undertook to straighten the channel and render it navigable for ocean-going vessels.

Some of you may be able to recall the number of hundreds of tons of blasting powder that was used in charging the thousands of drill-holes that had been sunk into these hard rocks. The day on which the blow-up occurred was a red-letter day for New York and Brooklyn, and one never to be forgotten by those who were there, for the foundations of both cities were shaken.

After some trimming up of the sides of the new passage, and the removal or breaking up of the larger chunks, it was possible for ships to pass through with safety, which was a great advantage to boats plying between Newport, Fall River, Boston and other points on the Sound.

At times the current in Hell Gate is very strong. This is because the Sound is so much wider above, and the volume of water so much greater, that when the tide goes down the Sound cannot discharge as rapidly as the tide falls, so that the water level below the narrows is lower than it is above, and it rushes through at a fearful rate.

As the tide rises the current runs in the opposite direction until the Sound is filled. In either case the inflow and outflow from the upper end of the Sound greatly facilitates the filling and the emptying of it. Were it not for this there would be a constant swift current either in or out through Hell Gate.

* * *

The run from New York to Fall River on one of those palatial steamers is a joy, even if the water is rough outside, for the Sound is separated from the ocean by Long island, a narrow body of land extending from Sandy Hook a distance of 200 miles along the New York and Connecticut Shores. Brooklyn and a number of other towns are situated on this narrow strip of land.

Just now a land boom is raging from one end of the island to the other. It was started by the announcements that several of the railroad systems are going to extend their lines under New York City and Brooklyn and establish docks on the ocean side of the island, thus obviating the slow and dangerous passage of vessels between Sandy Hook and New York.

Already tunnels are being pushed under New York, East river and Brooklyn, which will connect the Pennsylvnia and at least one other system with the eastern shore.

Boston, March 3, 1906.

CASUAL GLIMPSES AROUND THE CITY

Notes About People and Events in Which Pittsburghers Are Interested.

James A. Huston, general manager of the American Bridge Company in Pittsburgh, came home last night from New York, where he attended a meeting in the company's offices in connection with the strike situation. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, went to New York last week to attend this meeting, a conference without any official status, but an important preliminary to serious negotiations between the strikers and the bridge company.

"We are not bothering our heads about the strike," said Mr. Huston last night, "and we have not arranged for any meeting with labor interests or accepted any tentative offer of arbitration. The company has so much work on hand and is getting it out so satisfactorily that we are not particularly eager to make any terms."

From this it was inferred that the private conference in New York had been a failure in clearing up the atmosphere, though Mr. Huston refused to directly express himself to that effect.

✦ ✦ ✦

Hotel Association Conference.

Joseph H. Bensinger, a boniface of Dubois, came to Pittsburgh yesterday to preside at a meeting of the Pennsylvania State association of Hotel Proprietors, of which he is president, at the Hotel Henry last night. Many of the local hotel proprietors attend this business meeting and matters of interest to the association, particularly early closing of bars, were discussed at length. President Bensinger departed on a late train for Dubois and said he was not in a position to express at the present time the conclusions arrived at in last night's conference.

Remodeling Seventh Avenue Hotel.

In response to numerous rumors in real estate circles to the effect that the present Seventh Avenue hotel would be replaced by a 16-story, $2,000,000 caravansary, B. C. Wilson, proprietor of the hotel, made this statement yesterday:

"The plans now under consideration with regard to this hotel are in embryo. They are solely on the line of remodeling our present building and, therefore, do not include any plans for an annex or additional stories.

"The plans outlined for remodeling the interior of the Seventh Avenue hotel from cellar to roof are very ambitious, but, inasmuch as the property is held in trust, are progressing rather slowly. The property cannot be purchased outright for that same reason."

✦ ✦ ✦

Scenes in the Stations.

Frank Liston of "Bunker Hill, Ind., caused a mild sensation in Union station last night by the fact that he towers to the height of 7 feet 1 inch in his No. 12 shoes. The Indiana giant was going out to Greensburg to repair the Bell company's telephone lines, and remarked that if he was a little taller he wouldn't need "climbers" in ascending the poles. He is the tallest man in the United States outside of a circus.

D. F. Shields, representative of a western labor agency, chaperoned a batch of 300 foreign laborers through the Baltimore & Ohio station last night en route to Columbus, O. Mr. Shields, when asked if the men were to be used as strike-breakers in the event of a coal strike, declared that these heavy imports of newly-landed imigrants are brought on for work in the mills.

The Pennsylvania railroad sent out many linemen in all directions to repair damage caused by sleet and snow of the company's wires in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Many complaints were received of crippled wires in the mountainous districts. Evening trains passed through heavy sleet and snowstorms and arrived like white phantoms in sheathings of ice. On all lines the trains arrived on good time.

Notes on the Notables.

A. B. Collner, a banker of Clarion, registered at the Boyer.

J. W. Wardrop, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association, accompanied by his wife, who has been ill for over a month, left for Atlantic City last night, where they will sojourn two weeks.

Seven agents of the National Biscuit Company from other states registered last night at the Seventh Avenue to attend an agents' meeting, which will start at that hotel today.

Standard to Judge By.

Says the Public Ledger of Philadelphia: "If at this instant somebody should propose to issue legal tender based on the storage of potatoes in national depositories, the house would probably be in a quandary how to proceed. Any proposition which the President might support would be favored without question." The statement is slightly exaggerated. The people believe in the honesty and patriotism of the President, but they also believe in his intelligence and common sense, and the things he proposes can all be judged by that standard.—New York Tribune.

Stronger, If Anything.

Some people affect to feel that the Republican party is going into the coming political campaigns in a disorganized and dilapidated condition. There is nothing of the kind in prospect. The party has had some reverses of late, but that is a hopeful sign, for it is always stronger the next year after it meets with some repulse.—Ohio State Journal.

Utter Folly.

We assuredly do not want any discord with China. We want China to be our friend. We want all reports of danger to American lives and interests to be false. But as far as developments in the affair have gone, it is folly to say we are "provoking" China or have been "provoking" China by our military precautions.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MARCH MUSINGS.

"Here, my good man," said the kind-hearted woman, "is my husband's old overcoat. You will find it good and warm."

"Thank you, ma'am, werry much, but I couldn't t'ink of it," replied the weary wayfarer. "I'd look so comfortable in it dat it would ruin me business."—Philadelphia Record.

"I wonder what Hamlet was really reading when he said 'words, words, words,' to Polonius."

"I can't imagine," answered Senator Sorghum, "The Congressional Record wasn't published then."—Washington Star.

"Does your wife ever go through your pockets?"

"No, she wouldn't dare."

"Wouldn't dare?"

"Wouldn't dare to do anything that savored so much of idiotic hopelessness."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Young Wife—The landlord says he'll paper the bed room, but will have to put it on over the old paper and not scrape the walls."

Husband—Well, that's all right.

"But think, that room is much to small already."—American Spectator.

Mabel—Such a joke with Mr. Gayboy. We were out on the balcony between the dances and he got the sleeve of his dresscoat all over red paint from one of the posts that was just painted.

Maud—And did you go near the post?

Mabel—No. Why?

Maud—Oh, nothing; only you have red paint all over the back of your waist.—Pittsburgh Bulletin.

How to Avoid Frauds in Religion.

Desire for Spiritual Ease and Self-Satisfaction Must Be Banished.

By A MINISTER.

O, religion, how many frauds are perpetrated in thy name?

The hearts of the people hunger for the simple story of the love of God for His children, and His truth, goodness and justice, but instead of this corn of nutriment false prophets give them the mouldy husks of "barren subtleties" and queer philosophies on words, words, words!

Suppose, on a Sunday morning, the Great Teacher should occupy a pulpit in Pittsburgh, and invite the people to hear Him discuss a mystifying array of theories and a chattering maze of Biblical word-definitions, fortified with figures running into the billions, and a contemptuous demeanor for all men who might dare to differ from Him.

What would happen? Of course the people would not understand Him; they would turn empty away; they would be grieved, and, it may be, angered by the arrogance and self-sufficiency of His pompous assertions. For surely this could not be their Saviour. And yet up and down the world are marching legions of zealots, not of religion, but of such pitiable religiosity.

* * *

There is nothing in the world so easy as the propagation of a religious or theological fake. Mythical mining stocks may go a-begging, but never is the market short on obeisant and financial supporters of an imperious preacher of twaddle. 'Twas ever thus.

Most deeply laid is man's religious capacity, for God has made all of us in some degree partakers of His nature. Dissatisfaction is also prevalent in many men. None of the great varieties of religion can hold the impatient zealot, for he does not abide content with unmoved permanence.

Every wind and wave of doctrine carries away stacks of religious chaff. Multitudes know not their own minds, or the mind of the Master! What is really the strength of the Gospel is, according to them, its weakness. The Nazarene is such a natural and unaffected spirit. Seekers of signs and wonders are disappointed for He is too good to be true. They want some attractive and unique brand upon their truth, so that having it complete and preserved, they may speak with finality on the great issues of religion. They long for a finished system of belief.

Knowledge, they believe, does not grow from more to more. They seek rest. More knowledge makes for more thinking and deeper feeling, and their desire is flowery beds of spiritual ease. Little wonder the pet schemes, with certainty disposing of salvation and the hereafter—which have been the wrestling difficulty of saints in all ages—should draw into their meshes the credulous and weary!

* * *

Hence such a word as the following, by President Pritchett, a man of learning and piety—a dubious combination in a man, say some—makes little impression in excessively dogmatic circles: "Religion is the divine life in the human soul . . . Into every human soul this divine energy falls, just as the sunlight falls upon the flowers, and every human soul becomes a transformer of this energy. To receive this divine energy into one's soul and to transform it effectively into those spiritual forms which make for justice, mercy, joy, unselfishness, serenity of mind and of life, this is true religion."

Men who have thus spoken have never been sensation-mongers, but they have been blessed because they have helped the sinning, sorrowing and aspiring hearts of men. It seems to have been Jesus' way. He had a marvelous wisdom in going right to the heart of things, and men may believe that is the reason He never dealt with concerns which were of very little importance. He despised quibbling. It is such an abuse of time and talent.

And yet it might as well be recognized that religion will continue to be prostituted. For in addition to the existence of unsettled discomfort, which, like the poor, is always with us, there is money in soothing easy dependents. It is heart-breaking to witness so many bigoted, deluded and filched followers in a day which flaunts its learning.

* * *

Usually the Bible is the defender of the faith of the rigid and peculiar tenet-holder. With a wave of contemptuous and assumed erudition, the critic of the unhappy but established order sweeps the whole church, with all of her scholars, off the earth; the whole country, with her university methods and open-minded truth-seekers, is cleansed of her heretics. With the book in one hand, and a menacing fist made of the other, Sir Oracle defies even his suppliant hearers.

Opening the Bible, he says: "See, the Scripture thus answers for itself the foolishness of the churches." But he is guilty of falsehood. He ought to say: in truth, "Here is what I tell you the Bible means; what others have made it say is wrong."

"Let the Bible be its own interpreter," is a deceitful and dangerous cry.

Thus employed, the Bible has covered a multitude of sins. Do we not know that the Bible is a book, and that of itself it is cover, print and paper; that it is of value only when it has a reader, like any other book? Every reader of the two Testaments must, by sheer necessity, use his mind and heart to understand it; in other words, be his own interpreter, precisely as he is in reading a newspaper, or anything else.

* * *

Not upon any claims that it makes for itself, but upon the truth within it, which commends itself to the reader does the Bible depend for its hold on the spirits of men.

There is no quarrel about the two laws of love; the beatitudes are strong likewise in the human heart, for they are true to life all over the world. And who does not love the parables, with their everyday reality and helpfulness? But no one in his normal mind delights to quarrel about the meaning of a word, even if the word refers to the life we live in the spiritland.

On the whole subject of the hereafter Jesus tells us very little except that on which men are pretty well agreed. His recognized and ablest disciples in every age have followed the plan of not striving to be wiser than their Lord. As one reads His message, the impression is unmistakable that He was chiefly concerned with things here below.

He urged men and women, still of flesh and blood, to get proper ideals and pure motives for their conduct in the sacred here and now. And the implication is clear that the life beyond the fragile clay will be accorded to those who triumph in righteousness—whenever or however that may be—for the pure in heart shall see God.

When men begin to determine what the detailed plan of immortality is, they soon discover that into the uttermost of these secrets of God even the angels have never intruded.

It is a sad commentary, moreover, that the fruits of this Biblical perversion are not those enjoined by St. Paul. Religious zealots are mighty hard to get along with, especially in their own homes. The probable reason, in a word, is that they have made an idol not of the Bible, but of their own meanings read into the Bible. Their little-mindedness is because of their selfishness. This, more than anything else, broke the heart of Our Lord.

* * *

Indolence and shifting of obligation makes such blind devotion as the foregoing a wide-spread fact. It costs less in energy and it is peace-giving to their souls for some people to turn over their salvation without fear and trembling to some self-appointed Moses. Thus all differences and worries are settled forever.

But again to turn to the simple Gospel story, there is nothing which is so blameworthy as the closed soul and the satisfied mind, according to Jesus. The Publican was lovable and attractive because he had a sense of his sin, but the Pharisee was a most unworthy creature because he was unteachable and self-satisfied. His attention to the legalized rules of conduct did not save him, in the eyes of Jesus.

Better than adherence to regulations, which stand still and permit of no expansion of soul, better than acceptance of a valuable but unimportant creed, is the spirit of penitence in the face of error, and the recognition that God is infinite in His truth. Men must have reverent humility, for only thus can they see that the more they learn the wider appears the horizon of His wondrous spirit of truth and works of love. Truly, He is a great God.

CULLED FROM VARIOUS SOURCES.

Interested in Him.

Levi Ankeny of Washington has been a senator since March 4, 1903. He went to luncheon with Senator Nixon of Nevada a few days ago.

"Nixon," he said, "I have been attending some of the meetings of the Interoceanic canals committee because I am interested in the Panama canal. I have been much interested. There is a short, smooth-shaven young fellow there who seems to me to be about as bright as they make them. I don't know who he is but he seems to have some sort of a connection with the committee.

"I tell you he is all right. When he asks questions they go to the point. He knows what he is talking about all the time. I predict a good future for that young fellow. I wonder who he is."

"Why," said Nixon, "I can't imagine. Is he an attorney?"

"I think so," Anckney replied. "He is working for the committee apparently, and takes a prominent part in the proceedings. I have seen him around here quite a while. There he is now—that little man coming through the door there. Who is he?"

Nixon looked. "That," he said, "is the Hon. Philander C. Knox, former attorney general and now senator from Pennsylvania.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Depths Lead to Heights.

A Washington guide directed the attention of a party of sightseers to a small gray-haired man, and said, affectionately:

"There goes one of the greatest men in the country. That's Chief Justice Fuller."

"Why, he has no stature whatever," whispered one of the ladies.

"Nor weight," hastily rejoined another.

"And I can't understand," observed a man in the group, "how he has managed to attain to so great a height."

The guide answered him significantly and tersely, "Because of his great depth."—Harper's Weekly.

His Superb Audacity.

When Winston Churchill was at the battle of Spion Kop as a correspondent of the London Morning Post he was lunching with the general and his staff while the battle was raging above. One of the officers bantered the young correspondent on his assurances of success. "No doubt," he said, "you have got on surprisingly well, but you owe it all to the fact that you are Randy's son." "Sir" replied Winston, with his characteristically superb audacity, "the time is coming when Lord Randolph Churchill will be chiefly remembered as the father of Winston Churchill."—Indianapolis News.

How He Worked It.

A tramp entered the shop of a London baker. Although the weather was not very cold, he shivered and trembled piteously.

"A loaf, please, mum," he said, depositing the money on the counter. The woman lifted one from a shelf, and, having wrapped it in paper, handed it to him. As he took it he said, with shaking voice:

"Would you please, mum, tell me where the nearest 'orspital is?"

"The nearest hospital?" she ejaculated.

"Yes, mum, please. I'm feeling very bad. I believe I'm sickening for something—the scarlet fever, I think."

"What!" she shrieked. "Get out of my shop, you wretch!"

He turned submissively to obey. "Here, take your vile money," she cried. He did so; then, proffering the bread, asked humbly, "You'll take yer loaf, won't yer mum?"

"Get out of my shop!"

He crawled out, and with bowed head went round the corner. Presently a twin monument of wretchedness came toward him.

"Well, Bill?" he said.

"It's all right. I worked it in foine style."—London Tit-Bits.

True, in a Sense.

A Philadelphia public school teacher had been explaining to her class about the three kingdoms of nature—the animal, the mineral and the vegetable. When she had finished she said to the class:

At this question a little girl in a front seat raised her hand and replied:

"The highest degree of animal life is the giraffe."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

M. & M. TO INVADE NORTHERN OHIO

Trade Excursionists Will Spend a Week in May Visiting Their Business Friends.

MORE TIME AT EACH TOWN

During the week beginning May 21 representatives of over 100 of the most prominent firms in Pittsburgh will invade Northern Ohio. The itinerary of the sixth outbound extension excursion of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association has been prepared. The territory to be visited is the best that has been embraced in one trip to date. In five days the excursionists stop at 22 cities and towns, reaching direct over 400,000 people, and, including the smaller towns dependent upon these distributing centers for supplies, an aggregate population of over 600,000 people are served by the merchants to be visited.

More time has been allotted for each stop, the committee giving three and a half hours to Alliance, two and one-fourth hours to Massillon, two hours to Warren, two and one-half hours to Ashtabula, and from three to five hours during the day at Grafton, Mansfield, Akron, Youngstown and Erie, at each of which points the party will remain over night. The other places to be visited are East Palestine, Columbiana, Lectonia, Lisbon, Salem, Orrville, Wooster, Loudonville, Ashland, Kent, Ravenna, Niles and Conneaut.

While the excursionists devote their time to renewing old acquaintances and forming new ones, many of those visited insist on placing orders, and on the last trip one firm reported sales aggregating eight carloads of miscellaneous articles, and were requested to submit bids for some 30 pieces of work. A jeweler reported sales amounting to over $5,000 directly resulting from the last excursion. Another firm reported an increase of 75 per cent in its trade in territory covered by one of the trips. Traveling men report increased sales on subsequent trips, and members of firms are called up on the telephone by merchants visited on the trips when they have orders requiring special attention.

These trips encourage merchants to personally visit Pittsburgh, and about 750 merchants avil themselves of each of the several outbound excursions, under which the M. and A. pays their railroad fare, some coming from Western New York, Northern Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio and Indiana. At an average of $1,000 per person, a conservative estimate, this represents aggregate purchases of $750,000 for each trip, or $1,500,000 per year, exclusive of expenditures for hotel accommodations, amusements, etc.

The annual election of the association will be held on the afternoon of Tuesday, April 3, at the association rooms, when seven directors will be elected to take the place of H. W. Neely, C. W. Costello, Otto Heeren, Robert Garland, Edward Snodgrass, Jr., Charles H. Ogden and W. T. Todd, whose terms of office expire April 1. Immediately after the election the new board of directors will meet and elect the officers of the association for the ensuing year.

HAMILTON IS WAITING.

Declares He Has Received No Communication from Insurance Investigating Committee.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—Andrew Hamilton, whose connection with the legal and legislative work for the New York Life Insurance Company has been much discussed, and who returned last week from Europe to his home in this city, said tonight that, contrary to widely spread reports, he had received no communication of any kind from the Fowler committee, investigating the internal affairs of the New York Life Insurance Company.

"You may say for me," said Mr. Hamilton, "that should I receive any communication from the Fowler committee, it will receive due and courteous consideration."

Mr. Hamilton expects to go to New York tomorrow.

LIBERTY IS DEMANDED.

Hungarians Denounce Emperor Francis Joseph and Call for American Good Will.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Five thousand Hungarians attended a mass meeting today in the Grand Central palace to protest against the act of Emperor-King Francis Joseph, in dissolving the Hungarian parliament.

Resolutions were adopted condemning "the dastardly attempts of the crown and its hirelings to deprive the Magyar people of their constitutional rights and liberties," and calling upon the "great, free and liberty-loving American nation to open its heart again to the people of Louis Kossuth as it did 54 years ago, and by its good will to aid the Magyars in establishing a government of the people."

PNEUMONIA TAKES TRIO OF ALLEGHENY FAMILY

Father, Daughter and Husband Respond to the Summons, While a Little Child Is Critically Ill With the Same Disease.

Three times in less than four years pneumonia has brought death into the McCune resident, 1783 Perrysville avenue, Allegheny, and twice within the past fortnight has the Silent Reaper entered the homestead.

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Elizabeth McCune Merrit, aged 31, died of pneumonia after an illness of two weeks. Her father, Hugh McCune, aged 73, was buried two weeks ago last Wednesday. In life a wonderful attachment had existed between father and daughter, and when death claimed the venerable man, the daughter was broken-hearted. The day after the funeral she visited the grave and for a long time remained there exposed to the damp and cold. The following day she was ill and pneumonia set in rapidly. Her death occurred shortly after 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Merrit's strength had been undermined by her constant watchfulness at the bedside of her father.

During the mother's most critical illness Hugh, a 4-year-old son, was stricken with the same disease and was removed to the children's hospital attached to the United Presbyterian Orphans' home in West Jefferson street. The child is seriously ill.

Less than four years ago John Merrit, husband of the woman, took ill suddenly at Johnstown, where he had gone on a business trip. He died within three days of pneumonia.

OSTERMAIER AND M'CLURE TO QUIT

Secretary and Treasurer of the Republican Committee Will Not Seek Re-Elections.

LESLIE SILENT ON HIS PLANS

When the time comes for the reorganization of the Republican city committee at least two of the executive officers will retire. Secretary Robert Ostermaier and Treasurer Thomas G. McClure have told friends that they will not be candidates for re-election.

Chairman Leslie has not announced his intention. Should the President appoint him postmaster of Pittsburg he would have to surrender his position at the head of the city organization. When inquiry is made concerning his plans, he says it is too early to discuss the matter.

In the event of the retirement of Chairman Leslie the names of several men have been mentioned as his probable successor. Among the number are John C. Haymaker, Col. A. J. Logan and John G. Bennett. The latter took a prominent part in the Jenkinson campaign and it is said he is not adverse to accepting the chairmanship under certain conditions.

Secretary Ostermaier has long looked after the detail work of the city campaigns. In the mayoralty contest he performed a wonderful amount of labor. It is understood he intends to give up the office and allow some other Republican to carry the burden. Treasurer McClure has also seen long service and is prepared to surrender his position. So far there has been no discussion of their successors.

Allegheny county will elect four senators and 24 representatives this fall. There is some talk of candidates for seats in the lower house. In most of the districts there is a desire to secure high class men. The Republican leaders realize that in the next legislature every member who wants to accomplish anything for his constituents will have to be able to act and think for himself.

So far no Republican has appeared as a candidate for sheriff. A successor Dr. Dickson must be elected this fall. Usually candidates announce a year in advance. With a possibility of the nomination being made in May, no man has indicated a desire to seek this $6,000 position.

TO HONOR MEMORY OF WAR SECRETARY STANTON

STEUBENVILLE, O., March 11.—(Special.)—A committee appointed by the Bar association, G. A. R., city council and county commissioners has made arrangements to hang a portrait of Secretary of War E. M. Stanton, a native of Steubenville, in the court room, the scene of some of his legal and forensic triumphs. Secretary of War William Taft has been invited to deliver the address. The portrait is being painted by E. F. Andrews of Washington, who is a native of Steubenville and a friend of Stanton. He will donate the painting to the county.

MINISTERS READY TO FIGHT AGAINST MORE LICENSES

Protestant ministers of Sharpsburg yesterday announced from their pulpits that they were prepared to fight the granting of liquor licenses to four new applicants in the borough, and urged the members of the congregation to lend their personal support to the fight by signing the remonstrances the committee representing the borough Ministerial association has prepared. Two of the four applicants who are being remonstrated against are foreigners.

EASTERN TOURISTS LOSE VALUABLES TO HIGHWAYMEN

SAN JOSE, CAL., March 11.—A Mount Hamilton (Lick observatory) stage was held up last night at Grand View. Daniel Howard and wife of Brockton, Mass., and other eastern tourists, occupied the stage. The two highwaymen secured $6 in cash and a gold watch and other jewelry.

Johnson Overcome by Baby's Visit.

NEW CASTLE, PA., March 11.—(Special.)—Frank Johnson, the condemned murderer, bade his last goodbye late yesterday in his cell to his baby boy, who seems to be the only one for whom he has any love. The baby is 27 months old. The father burst into tears. When the child was taken away Johnson stood with his face pressed against the bars of his cell door.

MOST DISCUSSES IDAHO OUTRAGE

Anarchists Laugh When Leader Says Steunenberg Was Accidentally Removed.

DOESN'T LIKE LABOR UNIONS

Johann Most, the anarchist, made a speech last night. Most likes Pittsburg better than New York or Philadelphia, for here he can talk as much hot stuff as he pleases and the police don't interfere with him. In fact the police did not know that Most was to speak, although an advertisement announcing his "lecture" was published in the German papers. It was a public meeting, held at 416 Wood street.

Most's talk was concerning the recent happenings in Idaho, where ex-Governor Steunenberg was murdered and where a number of members of the Western Miners' Federation, affiliated with the Industrial Workers of the World, are to be tried for the murder. Most says it has not been proved that they were guilty of the crime and he thinks there will be another "judicial murder," as he calls hangings, for such offenses as the Steunenberg murder, the killing of policemen in Chicago with a bomb and the execution of the Molly Maguires in Pennsylvania, to all of which he referred.

Most said that Steunenberg, as governor, had called in federal troops to break a strike and sanctioned the commission of a whole lot of outrages under the guise of law.

"Well," said Most, his speech being in German, "this man was accidentally removed by a bomb," and his audience of anarchists laughed.

Most is opposed to the union shop and in favor of the open shop, because, he says, if the trade unions are destroyed another spirit, a spirit he would like to see, will animate the workingmen. He praised the Industrial Workers of the World very highly, for while they did not go as far as he would like to see them go, their principles looked to him pretty good. Most referred in his speech to the excitement in Philadelphia the night before, when an anarchist meeting he was to address was broken up.

Until recently governors of states in this country have been considered too small game by anarchists who prefer to execute their peculiar ideas on emperors, kings, presidents and princes. People are wondering if Most's activity in the Idaho affair means that governors and ex-governors will have to look out for themselves in future.

CUBANS IN THE MAJORITY.

Isle of Pines Census Shows Only 700 Americans in a Population of 1,700.

HAVANA, March 11.—Dryden Fulton, who was appointed to take the census of the Isle of Pines, and who was arrested by the Cuban authorities because he did not have their permission to do so, arrived here last night, and says the census was practically completed before the Cuban's stopped the work.

He says there are less than 2,000 inhabitants on the island and estimates the number of Cubans at 1,000, and actual Americans at about 700. He says that the number of male Cubans of voting age is 200 and that 49 voted in the last election.

CHINESE COMMISSIONERS REACH NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The imperial Chinese commissioners, Duke Tsai Tse, Shang Chi Heng and Li Cheng To, who are en route to Europe to investigate political conditions in England, France and Belgium, arrived here late this afternoon from New York. Tonight the commissioners were entertained by the Chinese minister. Tomorrow they will spend the day sightseeing, and they expect to call on the President and Secretary Root, returning later to New York preparatory to sailing for Europe.

Gold Miner Walking to Colorado.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 11.—(Special.)—P. J. Holleran, aged 41, last night applied at the police station for lodging. When he was searched several gold nuggets were found in his pockets. "I have a five-acre gold mine in Colorado and I came east hoping to get the money to work it, but failed. I haven't a cent and have to tramp my way back to Colorado," Holleran is a typical miner in appearance.

NEEDLESS ALARM.

Here's a poor man coughing away his lungs—at least, so his relatives think.

It's cough, cough; hack, hack, hack; all day and sometimes all night.

"Must be consumption," think the alarmed ones.

And, of course, there is always a possibility that they may be right.

But in most cases they're wrong; because Dyspepsia is so much more common than Consumption.

And Dyspepsia causes chronic Cough, just like Consumption.

The dyspeptic cough, it is well to remember, can be quickly cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

No need to be alarmed about it, unless you make up your mind to neglect it.

Then, indeed, you must look out for danger; for the Dyspeptic Cough often grows into a Consumptive Cough if neglected, by the constant lung irritation which it causes.

So the best way is to waste no time, but begin at once the use of these famous little tablets, the timely use of which has saved many a sick person from ending in a consumptive's grave.

Remember, however, if you please, that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will positively NOT cure Consumption, but prevent it.

Of course, they can always be depended on to cure all the other symptoms of indigestion.

They are a universal cure, for one universal disease.

They cure nothing else; but what they do, they do thoroughly and well.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the result of the most thorough investigation into the inside causes and the cure of Indigestion that has ever been attempted.

They have solved a problem, the answer to which a hundred thousand physicians in America are today groping for in vain.

They cure the most severe, long-continued chronic, complicated cases of Indigestion that can be found. They are far ahead of the most modern medical practice, because the most successful physicians of the day, in the cure of diseases of the digestive organs, are using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets as a basis for their success.

They stoop to Stuart's to conquer.

And Stuart's lift them up, out of the rut.

If, therefore, you are a victim of this dread disease, which counts its victims by the million, brace up and take new heart, for you cannot fail to cure your trouble if you will only put your faith in this great remedy, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

They are positively, frankly, truly, a sure and permanent relief.

Try them.

MORGAN J. CONLEY DIES SUDDENLY

Well-Known Policeman on a Prominent Beat Succumbs to Heart Disease.

POPULAR, EFFICIENT OFFICER

Policeman Morgan J. Conley is dead. Conley patrolled at night the beat bounded by Wood and Smithfield streets and Fifth and Fourth avenues. Thousands knew him, for he was a walking mine of the information a policeman ought to have and was always courteous when asked to give any.

Conley's death was sudden. He worked all night on Friday, but on Saturday night sent word that he was not feeling well and was excused by Police Inspector Robinson. He was no better when he arose yesterday morning, so after walking about the yard a little he returned to the house and lay down on a couch in the dining room. After a while his wife asked him how he felt. He replied in a feeble voice that he was not better, closed his eyes, gasped and was dead. Heart disease is supposed to have killed him.

There are policemen who have been longer on the force than Conley, but there is hardly one known by more people. That part of Smithfield street and Fifth avenue on his route is the most traveled street section in Pittsburgh at night, and many hundreds knew Conley to speak to him. The beat is small, but important, because of the business houses and the financial institutions on it. He was popular, too. When the city administration went into power Conley was booked for dismissal for political reasons. Without his solicitation scores of business men, lawyers, politicians and workingmen interceded for him and he was retained.

Conley was born in the First ward August 19, 1861 and was a son of Morgan and Bridget Conley. He attended the public schools and then learned the trade of machinist. Eleven years ago he was appointed on the police force. Conley was a member of St. John's Roman Catholic church, South Side, Fourteenth street, and Lodge 33, C. M. B. A. He is survived by his widow, Helen, and two children, Maimie and Howard. Conley will be buried on Wednesday morning from St. John's church, in the Calvary cemetery.

GORDON ACCUSES WINSTON OF SHOOTING FROM REAR

Mayor Weaver's Counsel Writes a Bitingly Bitter Letter to Chairman of City Committee.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—James Gay Gordon, private counsel for Mayor Weaver, smarting under the reply of the committee of 70 to the inquiry of the city committee of the City party on the subject of further criminal prosecutions, wrote today to John C. Winston, chairman of the committee and the signer of communication in question asking in bitingly plain words, his reasons for fathering such a document.

Ex-Judge Gordon, who wrote the letter without the knowledge of Mayor Weaver, takes Mr. Winston to task chiefly on two subjects of the committee's letter; first, the imputation that he, as counsel for the mayor, had failed to do all that he could to protect the city, and prosecute grafting contractors, and second, the assertion that the city had been put to great expense in the matter.

"You are of the army I have been serving in," writes the mayor's counsel, "and this is a shot from the rear, and from our own ranks."

He writes that the letter of the committee gives great secret encouragement to the members of the old machine, for it raises the same cry that they raised. He then declares that his months of service have been given without the slightest remuneration, and further, he has left no stone unturned to serve the mayor and the city to the very best of his ability.

The Death Roll.

Mrs. Charlotte T. Taylor.

BEAVER, PA., March 11.—Mrs. Charlotte T. Taylor, widow of the Rev. Dr. William G. Taylor, died tonight at her home here, aged 85 years. She was born in Pittsburgh and was married in 1849. She and her husband, who was a well-known minister of the Presbyterian church, conducted the State Soldiers' Orphans' school at Monaca from 1866 until 1873. She had been a resident of Beaver county for more than half a century. Dr. Taylor died in 1903. Two daughters and three sons survive: Mrs. M. M. Martin, superintendent of public schools, St. Paul, Minn.; Mrs. James W. Stewart, James W. Taylor and the Hon. John T. Taylor, Beaver; Harvey J. Taylor, Monaca. She also leaves one sister, Mrs. Eliza Dunn of Allegheny.

Mrs. Hannah E. Asher.

Mrs. Hannah Eliza Asher of Allegheny is dead at Jacksonville, Fla. Mrs. Asher, who was the widow of Adolph Asher, had been ill since the latter's death last May and had recently gone to Jacksonville in the hope of recovering her health. She was a native of England, but had lived here since a child and was well known through her connection with Jewish charities. Mrs. Asher is survived by the following children: Mrs. Harry Hollander, Verde L., Minnie, Louis and Alfred Asher of Allegheny, and Mrs. Harry Silverman of Pittsburgh, and one sister, Mrs. Bessie Chessall of Findlay, O. The funeral will take place from the residence of Mrs. Hollander, 1309 Locust street, Allegheny, on Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Mary A. Fairfax.

Mrs. Mary A. Fairfax, a sister of Detective George W. Cole, died suddenly at 6:40 o'clock last night, at her home, 2831 Liberty avenue. She went to church in the morning and ate a hearty dinner on her return. About 3 o'clock she complained of not feeling well and said she would go to her room and take a sleep. When a member of the family went to call her she was found dead. Mrs. Fairfax had been in delicate health for some time.

Obituary Notes.

Gen. Joseph S. Gage, aged 67, died in San Jose, Cal., of paralysis. He was born in Paris, Maine.

Mrs. William A. Simmons, aged 82, mother of Mrs. William Clyde Wilkins of 941 Lincoln avenue, Allegheny, died at 11 o'clock Saturday night at her home in Troy, N. Y. She had resided many years in that city. Three children survive her, Mrs. Wilkins, Mrs. Martha Tuttle of Kansas City, Mo., and a son who resides in Troy.

Thomas E. McKenna, aged 45, managing editor of the Rocky Mountain News and of the Denver Times, died last night at a hospital in Denver of heart disease. For four years he was secretary and manager of the Shamrock lacrosse team, which held the championship of Canada and England.

POLICE MAY HAVE "MAN IN BLACK"

Arrest Stranger Who Answers to Description of Mysterious Burglar-Highwayman.

IS IDENTIFIED BY VICTIMS

"The Man in Black," who has been terrorizing residents of the East End for the last two weeks, is at last believed to have been captured. A man who answers his description was arrested at Thirty-fourth street and Penn avenue Saturday afternoon by Inspector W. J. Boyle of the Lawrenceville police district, and is occupying a cell in the Lawrenceville police station. He gives his name as Robert Davis. Two of his alleged victims, Dr. J. Clark Logan and A. R. Fritz, have already said that he was without doubt the man.

Although he has been questioned by the police a number of times since his capture, the man maintains a stubborn silence, beyond telling his name.

Probably no burglar who has ever operated in this city has displayed so much boldness and disregard for the police as the "Man in Black." His depredations had become so daring that the women and children, and even men, ventured out after night in fear. Every night there was a change in his scene of operations.

Although the sleuths of the city have been on the alert for several days, it was not until Saturday that an definite action was made to locate the "Man in Black." Saturday Superintendent Werner sent out a description of him obtained from persons who had seen him. Shortly afterward, as Inspector Boyle was walking down Penn avenue he noticed a man who tallied to the description exactly, and arrested him.

Robbed More Than 30 Homes.

During the two weeks in which he has been working, the "Man in Black" has entered over thirty homes, and his loot would reach several thousand dollars. His first appearance was on the evening of February 21, when he entered the house of Mrs. George Wright, 117 Roup street. Her daughter was critically ill with typhoid fever, and the fright is supposed to have been indirectly responsible for her death. Subsequently on that night he entered the houses of James McNally and Grant Dibert in Fairmount avenue, and ended his night's work by burglarizing the residence of Henry H. Negley, 600 North Negley avenue.

He rested for two days, when he again appeared in the vicinity of Home street, entering eight houses, his work that night having netted him somewhere in the neighborhood of $1,000. The houses entered were as follows: Robert D. Coard, 6334 Howe street; T. M. Dickey, 6332 Howe street; W. D. Marshall, 338 Denison avenue; J. C. Stambaugh, Denison avenue; Thomas Quinn, 122 Shetland avenue; Joseph Neff, 126 Shetland avenue; Charles Holtman, 123 Winslow street, and L. Luchito, 126 Winslow street.

The man's next appearance was in an entirely different role. Dressed in the height of fashion, he gained an interview with Martha Negley, the proprietoress of a Colwell street house. The result was some drugged wine for the woman, and the man's escape with her money and jewels.

From Burglar to Highwayman.

Again he changed and became a highwayman, and on March 2 held up Dr. J. Clark Logan and two women. The following night he held up A. R. Fritz of 642 Maryland avenue.

His last appearance was as a burglar, and was the only one in which he came near being captured. On Friday night he called on Attorney Leo A. Weil, but Attorney Weil discovered him and fired two shots at him as he jumped from a window. While fleeing, four policemen who were attracted by the shots, emptied their revolvers at him, but he seemed to be immune from bullets.

Davis will be given a hearing before Magistrate Kane, this morning, charged with being a suspicious person.

Police Have Busy Day.

Charged with keeping a disorderly house and harboring a minor, Elsie Clark, Emma Coyles and Loretta Thomas will be given a hearing at Central station this morning. The house at 1029 Fifth avenue was raided yesterday by Inspector Robinson and Captain Bartley. Ruth Walters, aged 13, was found in the house, but the Clark woman said that she was her daughter.

Inspector Robinson and Captain Bartley also raided the alleged disorderly house of Mrs. Jennie Martin in "Criminal Court," off Shingles street, yesterday, and arrested Mrs. Martin and three men and two women visitors.

A. Bion Boggs is Ill.

A. Bion Boggs of Ben Avon is ill at the private hospital of Dr. W. W. Keen, Seventeenth and Summer streets, Philadelphia, where an operation was performed on him Saturday. He is said to be improving. The announcement of Mr. Boggs' illness was made yesterday by the Rev. C. H. Dunlap in the Avalon Presbyterian church. Mrs. Boggs and their 14-year-old son Lawrence are with Mr. Boggs.

ROOT TO ASSUME CANAL CONTROL

Taft's Appointment to Bench Will Transfer Panama Project to State Department.

STIFLES MR. MAGOON'S BOOM

Special Telegram From
L. W. STRAYER, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—With the resignation of William H. Taft as secretary of war, to succeed Henry B. Brown as associate justice of the supreme court, which now seems probable, the control of the Panama canal project will pass from the war department to the state department. This contingency has been fully considered by President Roosevelt, and it can definitely be stated that the President will follow this course.

The change was suggested some time ago to the President, but he had such a high opinion of Mr. Taft's administrative ability that he did not care to make it. The suggestion was based upon the manifold duties resting upon the secretary of war. It was urged that with the Panama canal, the Philippines, and the army, Secretary Taft had a greater burden than even his broad shoulders could safely carry. But Mr. Taft seemed willing to let things remain as they were, and the President was not inclined to disturb them.

Secretary Root stands ready to take the work and responsibility connected with building the canal if it is desired to transfer it to his department, and there is no room for questioning his ability to cope with the problems presented. There is just as much reason, if not more, why the canal management should be vested in the state department as in the department of war.

Magoon Has Two Positions.

Charles E. Magoon holds the dual position of minister to Panama and governor of the canal zone as a member of the Isthmian canal commission. At present he reports to Secretary Root as minister to Panama, and is under the supervision of Secretary Taft as an official of the canal commission. Should the canal project be transferred to the state department, Mr. Magoon will be responsible to but one chief.

Rumor has connected the name of Mr. Magoon with the war department as the probable successor of Secretary Taft, but this guess was based upon his familiarity with the Panama canal project, now the greatest task before that department. As the transfer of this project to the state department is considered as decided upon, it removes Mr. Magoon from the list of probabilities as Mr. Taft's successor.

Big Job for Mr. Root.

In taking up the canal work Secretary Root will assume a tremendous undertaking, surrounded by great responsibilities and many cares. He will become responsible for the hundreds of millions of dollars to be expended by the government and will be charged with the successful execution of the plans now under way. But Mr. Root's friends have such confidence in his ability that they believe he will successfully handle every problem that is presented.

Secretary Taft has not yet announced his determination to accept the place on the supreme bench, but those in a position to know, confidently express the opinion that he will take it. It has been suggested that Secretary Taft's hesitation is due to the fact that there are measures pending before congress in which he is interested, and for which his influence might be lessened if it was known that he is going on the bench. Congress might not give so much heed to his recommendations if it was known that he was about to retire from active work.

More Trouble at Cornwall Mines.

LEBANON, PA., March 11.—(Special.)—Fresh trouble broke out today at the Cornwall ore mines, where striking miners caused a serious riot last week. Several deputy sheriffs were called to Cornwall this morning to subdue a riot between the black and white population. Two of the ringleaders were arrested. The striking Italians held meetings today and more trouble is feared tomorrow.

STARTLING IMPROVEMENT IN THE WORLD'S MARKETS

Germany's Reported Conciliatory Policy Toward France Has Favorable Effect on All Stock Exchanges Which Is Expected to Be Permanent.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, March 11.—After the depressing gloom which prevailed in all departments of the stock exchange last week and the fear which existed in many quarters of the coming settlement, Saturday passed with only one failure, that of a small kaffir jobber.

It is, of course, still too early to say whether any more failures will be announced, but in any case it is impossible for anything of importance to occur now, and the stock exchange breathes freely again at the happy ending of the settlement, which had been looked forward to with more concern than any other for a very long time.

Dismally enough the week began. Indeed, on Monday and Tuesday the situation remained very much the same as it was throughout the previous week, prices continuing to give way until suddenly there came a dramatic change.

News came from Berlin that the German government had decided to adopt a conciliatory policy toward France. The change which this announcement created was simply startling. The improvement has lasted ever since, and a feeling prevails that everything points to a continuance of it. That, of course, remains to be seen, and, as usual, the Statist voices the views of the optimist. "If," it says, "a satisfactory settlement is arrived at at Algeciras we may reasonably look forward to a steady improvement.

"It has been evident to all careful observers for some years past that the London market is prepared for a revival if politics allows. Two years ago all careful observers were confidently counting upon such a revival, when, unfortunately, the Russo-Japanese war broke out and upset all calculations. A year ago it was foreseen the war must soon come to an end, and once more careful observers anticipated a recovery in business.

"Again calculations were disarranged by the grave troubles in Russia and by the strained relations between Germany and France. Now it looks as if the troubles in Russia have come to an end, while settlement at Algeciras will give proof that nowhere is there an intention to disturb the peace of Europe. That being so, it may with confidence be expected that there will be a very considerable revival of all kind of business."

Business in the American railway market has remained on a restricted scale, owing to the fear of a strike in the anthracite coal regions continuing to prevail. This adversely affected certain shares, Reading being down 3¾ on the week. There was, however, a sharp recovery at the end of the week, and in nearly all other case there is an advance.

MONEY MARKET BETTER FROM SEVERAL CAUSES

Trade Conditions Are Favorable, but on the Crop Outcome Must Depend Permanent Improvements.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, March 11.—Several factors contributed to a slight betterment of the money market during the week. The most effective of all probably was the liquidation that took place in the security market itself, and next in relative importance, was the purchase of securities by Europe and the temporary relief afforded by Secretary Shaw in depositing $3,000,000 of public money in local government depository banks.

Neither of these features definitely determined the permanency of the improvement, and, in fact, it may be doubted if the improvement at this time is other than temporary. Liquidation speedily ran its course, and with the upward swing that naturally followed upon a long continued, and, in some instances, extensive decline, the tendency is naturally to neutralize such improvement as was derived from liquidation itself.

As to the government relief measure, though such operations always have some sentimental influence, the monetary situation has developed from causes having only a slight bearing upon the workings of the independent treasury system. Causes which are still operative and likely to continue so, and hence not likely to be much changed by a driblet of public money deposited in the banks.

Foreign buying of American securities may continue, and if in volume sufficient, this unquestionably will assist in easing the monetary situation, but chiefly through the proceeds of cancelling the aggregate value of the bonds and stocks sold just so much of the country's indebtedness as has already been incurred abroad by heavy merchandise purchases, the drawing of finance bills or direct borrowing on securities carried in foreign markets.

Wall street is again drawing close to the period where the fundamental conditions are likely to play an increasingly important part in market consideration. Highly favorable as is the various indicia of trade, as indicated by the huge volume of bank clearances, the wonderfully expanding railroad earnings and the like, it will depend upon the crop outcome whether the inflation of loans, already stupendous, can be expanded the more, and still greater credits be [illegible] already outstanding.

[illegible] upon the outcome of the crops [illegible] and then upon the [illegible] of the other great [illegible] of the year, will the country be [illegible] pass the danger of [illegible] operators to [illegible] or [illegible] upon the money markets, [illegible] and [illegible] of a further expansion in [illegible] and speculative securities.

The [illegible] of the [illegible] and the recovery in [illegible] prices as the two [illegible] duly [illegible] the future. Nothing [illegible] than actual [illegible] are largely responsible for the [illegible] recovery. The dullness, with the generally insignificant price changes, indicate that the security market was almost at a [illegible] depending upon developments to determine [illegible] course with [illegible]

THE PITTSBURGH TONOPAH GOLD MINING COMPANY'S STOCK AT 45c PER SHARE THE BEST BUY ON THE MARKET

The Pittsburgh Tonopah Gold Mining Company

[illegible] much higher. The best investment on the market. Mr. Albert [illegible] Pittsburgh Tonopah Gold Mining Company, arrived in Tonopah, Saturday, and writes:

"CONDITIONS FINE."

Mr. Scott will push the [illegible] rises. So now is your opportunity to invest while you can secure [illegible] shares, [illegible] at present price 45 cents per share, par value one dollar per share, fully paid and non-assessable.

Stock will advance [illegible] development work progresses.

I consider the Pittsburgh [illegible] Gold Mining Company's stock an excellent buy at 45 cents per share. Affairs of the company [illegible] capable business and mining men.

TONOPAH

Discovered only [illegible] years ago, it has proven to be the richest gold producing district the world has ever known. Tonopah has gold ore in sight [illegible] at present in her numerous mines now over ($350,000,000) Three Hundred and Fifty Million Dollars in Gold. [illegible] to [illegible] of small investors rich and pays millions yearly in dividends to the stockholders. Are you [illegible] holders? If not, you can be.

Tonopah Extension Mining [illegible] sold by Chas. M. Schwab, sold 18 months ago for 10 cents per share; sold last week in the Pittsburgh [illegible] $1.50 per share! This mine is said to have $35,000,000 Gold ore in sight. It pays 15 per cent quarterly dividends. Original investors have made a profit of over 14,000 per cent.

Mizpah Mining Stock of Tonopah [illegible] while ago for 33 cents per share; it is now selling for $22.50 per share; pays 25 per cent quarterly dividends [illegible] per annum on each $100 originally invested. Many others in same district have paid big profits.

Shares in the Comstock Mining [illegible] of Tonopah) were bought for 10 cents per share and sold soon after for $1.50 per share.

The Pittsburgh Tonopah Gold [illegible] promises just as good results. Stock now selling at 45 cents per share. Will soon advance. Fully paid and non-assessable.

Tonopah ores are the finest [illegible] bullion of any mining district in the world, the gold obtained therefrom being worth $20.67 per [illegible] of the Tonopah Gold being 989 per cent.

Tonopah Mines production [illegible] statement on page 164, United States Treasury Report on production of precious metals in the United States for 1905, that [illegible] tons of Tonopah ore netted in gold dollars $576,145.44. Compare this with the same amount of ore from the three most famous and largest dividend-paying gold mines in the world, the comparison is amazing in favor of the Tonopah product. The Treadwell Gold Mine, the largest stamp mill in the world, is located on Douglas Island, Alaska, and owned by the Rothschilds of Europe. The general average of Treadwell ore is $1.80 per ton, and 2,534 tons would only net $4,814.60. Treadwell mine paid to its stockholders in dividends for the year 1905 $2,000,000.

The Homestake Mine in South Dakota, owned by the Hearst Estate, one of the largest dividend-paying mines in the world, the ore averages only $3.71 per ton, and 2,534 tons of this ore would produce but $8,399.14. Dividends paid by this mine last year to its stockholders were $3,200,000.

The great South African Mine of Cecil Rhodes on the Rand averaged about $15 per ton, and 2,534 tons would return but $38,010.

Following is the table:

		NETTED IN
Tonopah Ores	2534 Tons	$576,145.44
Treadwell Mines, Alaska	2534 Tons	4,814.60
Homestake Mine, So. Dak.	2534 Tons	8,399.14
Cecil Rhodes Mine, S. A.	2534 Tons	38,010.00

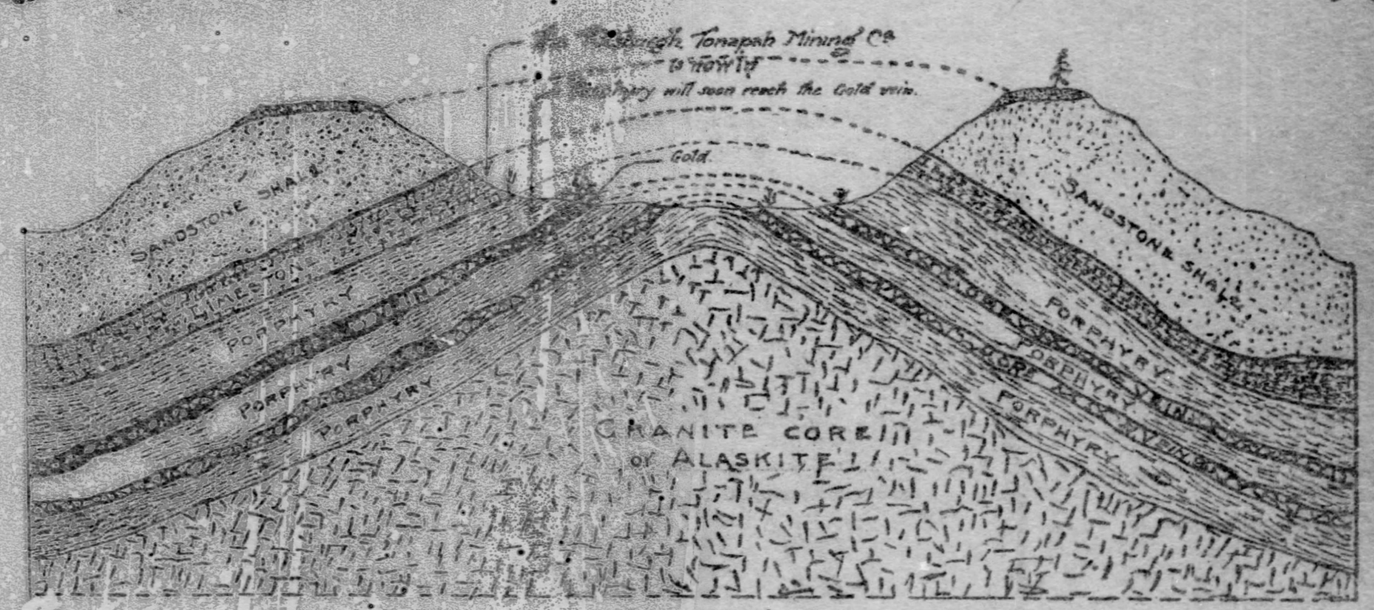
The figures in the above table speak for themselves and need no one to forecast the future results of Tonopah Mines; the fact is that Tonopah is the foremost camp of the world as a treasure house of Gold and Silver.

The Pittsburgh Tonopah Gold Mining Company owns, clear of debt, about 82 acres, comprising four mining properties. The Moonbeam, Desert Silver and [illegible] Gulch, situated in the center of the marvelous mineralized district of Tonopah. The company has no [illegible] bonds, no preferred stock.

The Shaft on the Pittsburgh Tonopah [illegible] Company's property at thirty-six feet showed a lode porphyry, which is the best [illegible] that gold will be found [illegible] they proceed to develop further down. H. W. Scheld, mining engineer for the company at Tonopah, states that in his opinion he will cross-cut the famous King Tonopah vein at a depth of about 200 feet.

There are absolutely no surface indications [illegible] world-famed Tonopah mining district. The Tonopah Extension Mining Company sunk through a [illegible] barren [illegible] capping, called lava, over 374 feet, before they struck lode porphyry, and then some distance down ran [illegible] famous vein which has astonished the mining and banking world. And this is the case in all other producing Tonopah mines. First, find porphyry, and then you will certainly run into the gold-bearing vein, which lies [illegible] and lower wall of lode porphyry.

The following cut, which was made from [illegible] made by one of America's greatest geologists, John O. Hoff, M. E., of San Francisco, California, showing the [illegible] formation of the Ralston Desert, in which are located the Pittsburgh Gold Mining Company's mines and all the Tonopah mines.



Ideal Geological Section of Tonopah, Nevada.

The Pittsburgh Tonopah Gold Mining Company has one of the best opportunities of any mining property in the Tonopah District when it is fully developed, with which to do the necessary work. The company is selling 200,000 shares of its Treasury Stock, nearly all of which has been sold.

We advise you to purchase stock in the Pittsburgh Tonopah Gold Mining Company during December at twenty-five cents per share. You can purchase now NOW to purchase at forty-five cents per share, for this stock will go much higher.

We are informed by telegram that there is only a limited amount of the 200,000 Treasury Shares which were offered remaining unsold, so write or call at once for application blank, booklet and full information. Wire in at our expense number of shares you wish reserved.

IN PERIL OF HIS LIFE

BY EMILE GABORIAU

Author of "THE MYSTERY OF ORGIVAL," "FILE NO. 113," Etc.

At length the carriage stopped before the house. The door was opened instantly, and the marchioness found herself in Denise's arms, and soon afterward she was comfortably seated in an easy chair. The others had followed her. It was past 2 o'clock in the morning, but every minute now was valuable. Accordingly Dr. Seignebos, after adjusting his spectacles, exclaimed, "I propose that we exchange our information. I, for my part, am still at the same point. But you know my views. I do not give them up. Cecoleu is an impostor, and it shall be proved. I appear to notice him no longer, but in reality I watch him more closely than ever."

At this point Denise interrupted him, saying, "Before anything is decided, there is one fact which you all ought to know. Listen!" Then, pale as death, for it cost her a great struggle to reveal the secret of her heart, but in a voice full of energy, and with an eye full of fire, she told them what she had already confessed to her grandfather, viz., the propositions she had made to Jacques, and his obstinate refusal to accede to them.

"Well done, mademoiselle!" cried Dr. Seignebos, full of enthusiasm. "Well done! Jacques is very unfortunate, but still he is to be envied."

Denise finished her recital. Then, turning with a triumphant air to M. Magloire, she added, "After that, is there any one who could yet believe that Jacques is a vile assassin?"

The eminent advocate was not one of those men who set their opinions above the truth itself. "I confess," he said, "that if I were to go and see Jacques tomorrow for the first time, I should not speak to him as I did before."

"And I," exclaimed the Marquis de Boiscoran, "I declare that I answer for my son as for myself, and I mean to tell him so tomorrow." Then turning toward his wife, and speaking so low that she alone could hear him, he added, "And I hope you will forgive me those suspicions the mere idea of which now fills me with horror."

But the marchioness did not reply. She had no strength left; she fainted, and had to be removed, accompanied by Denise and the Demoiselles de Lavarande. As soon as they were out of the room, Dr. Seignebos locked the door, rested his elbow on the chimney-piece, and taking off his spectacles to wipe them, said to M. Folgat, "Now we can speak freely. What news do you bring us?"

CHAPTER XXI.

Eleven o'clock had just struck that same morning, when Blangin, the jailer, entered Jacques' cell in the most excited manner, exclaiming, "Sir, your father is down stairs!"

The prisoner jumped up as if he had received the shock of an electric battery. The night before he had had a note from M. de Chandore, informing him of the marquis' arrival; and his whole time had since been spent in preparing himself for the interview. How could it end? Did his father doubt him, or did he believe in his innocence? Jacques had been left in ignorance of the marquis' sentiments. Accordingly, he had resolved to retain an attitude of reserve, and as he followed Blangin along the dismal passage and down the interminable steps, he tried to compose respectful phrases, and to look self-possessed. But before he could utter a single word he was in his father's arms. He felt himself pressed against the marquis' heart, and herd him stammer, "Jacques, my dear son, my unfortunate boy!"

In all his life, long and stormy as it had been, the marquis had not been tried so severely. Drawing Jacques to one of the parlor windows, and leaning back a little, so as to see him better, he was amazed that he could ever have doubted his son. It seemed to him that he was standing there himself. He recognized his own features and bearing, his frank but rather haughty expression, his own clear, bright eye. Then suddenly noticing details, he was shocked to perceive that Jacques looked so fearfully pale, and that more than one silvery hair peered forth amid his thick black curls. "Poor fellow!" said the marquis, "how you must have suffered!"

"I thought I should lose my senses," replied Jacques, simply. And with a tremor in his voice he asked, "But, dear father, why did you give no sign of life? Why did you stay away so long?"

The marquis was not unprepared for such a question. But how could he answer it? Could he ever tell Jacques the true secret of his hesitation? Turning his eyes aside, he answered, "I hoped I should be able to serve you better by remaining in Paris."

His embarrassment was too evident to escape Jacques' notice. "You did not doubt your own son, father?" he asked sadly.

"Never!" cried the marquis. "I never doubted a moment. Ask your mother and she will tell you it was this proud assurance that I felt which kept me from coming down with her. When I heard of what they accused you I said at once 'It is absurd!'"

Jacques shook his head and rejoined, "The accusation was absurd, yet you see what it has brought me to."

Two big tears, which he could no longer retained, rolled down the old gentleman's cheeks. "You blame me, Jacques," he said, "You blame your father."

The man is rare who could see his father shed tears, and not feel his heart melt within him. All the resolutions Jacques had formed vanished in an instant. Pressing his father's hand in his own, he said, "No, I do not blame you, father. And still I have no words to tell you how much your absence has added to my sufferings. I thought I was abandoned, disowned."

For the first time since his imprisonment, the unfortunate man found a friend to whom he could confide all the bitterness that filled his heart. With his mother, and with Denise, honor forbade him to show his despair. M. Magloire's impassibility had made all confidence impossible, and M. Folgat, although as sympathetic as a man could be, was, after all, a perfect stranger. But now he had near him a friend, the dearest and most precious friend that a man can ever have—his father; now he had nothing to fear. "Is there a human being in this world," he said, "whose misfortunes equal mine? To be innocent, and not to be able to prove it! To know the guilty one, and not to dare mention the name. Ah! at first I did not take in the whole horror of my situation. I was frightened, to be sure; but I trusted that justice would discover the truth. Justice! It was my friend, Galpin-Daveline who represened it, and he cared little enough for the truth; his only aim was to prove that the man whom he accused was guilty. Read the papers, father, and you will see how I have been victimized by the most unheard-of combination of circumstances. Everything is against me. Never has that mysterious, blind and absurd power, that awful power which we call fate, manifested itself so clearly. At first a sense of honor kept me from mentioning the Countess de Claudieuse's name, and then prudence. The first time I mentioned it to M. Magloire he told me I lied. Then I thought everything was lost. I saw no other end but the court, and, after trial, the galleys or the scaffold. I wanted to kill myself. My friends made me understand that I did not belong to myself, and that, as long as I had a spark of energy and a ray of intelligence left me, I had not the right to dispose of my life."

"Poor, poor boy!" said the marquis. "No, you have no such right."

"Yesterday," continued Jacques, "Denise came to see me. Do you know what brought her here? She offered to fly with me. Father, the temptation was almost irresistible. Once free, with Denise by my side, what should I care for the world? She insisted, like the matchless girl that she is; and on the very spot where you now stand, she threw herself at my feet, imploring me to fly. I doubt whether I can save my life; still I would not go."

He felt deeply moved and sank upon the rough bench, hiding his face in his hands, perhaps to conceal his tears. Suddenly, however, he was seized with one of those attacks of passion which had mastered him but too often during his imprisonment, and he exclaimed, "But what have I done to deserve this punishment?"

The marquis' suddenly darkened, and he replied in a solemn tone, "You coveted your neighbor's wife, my son."

Jacques shrugged his shoulders. "I loved the Countess de Claudieuse," he said, "and she loved me."

"Adultery is a crime, Jacques."

"A crime? True, Magloire said the same thing. But, father, do you really consider it is? Then it is a crime which has certainly nothing appalling about it—a crime of which everybody is inclined to boast, and at which the world smiles. The law, it is true, gives the husband the right of life and death; but, if you appeal to the law, it simply gives the guilty man six months' imprisonment, or makes him pay a few thousand francs."

Ah, if he had known his father's secret, he would never have spoken thus!

"Jacques," said the marquis, "the Countess de Claudieuse hints, as you say, that her youngest daughter is your child?"

"It may be so."

The Marquis de Boiscoran shuddered. Then he exclaimed bitterly—"It may be so! You say that carelessly, indifferently, madman that you are! Did you never think of the grief the Count de Claudieuse would feel if he should learn the truth? Or even if he merely suspected it! Can you not comprehend that a suspicion is quite sufficient to embitter a whole life? Have you never realized that the harboring of such a doubt inflicts a more cruel punishment than anything you have yet suffered?" He paused. A few words more, and he would probably have betrayed his secret. Checking his excitement by a sustained effort, he added, "But I did not come here to discuss this question; I expect [illegible] ever may be [illegible] by you, and [illegible] the disgrace [illegible] take a seat [illegible]

MAYOR HAYS' VETO GOES TO SELECT

Administration to Try to Knock Out Item for Thirty-Second Ward Engine House.

RAILROAD FIGHT TONIGHT

The mayor's veto of the $35,000 appropriation for a new engine house in the Thirty-second ward, which was overridden by common council last Tuesday night, will go to select council today. If the upper branch concurs in the action of common council the Thirty-second ward will get its engine house. The votes of three-fifths of the members elected, or 24, are required to pass the appropriation in select.

The Thirty-second ward engine house item was the only one vetoed by the mayor that was passed by the common branch, and the administration today will make an attempt in select council to knock the item out. The present engine house in the Thirty-second ward is reported to be in a deplorable condition, so unsafe that the firemen are afraid to sleep in it. It is said the floor is so rotten that there is danger of the fire engine and hose carriage falling into the cellar.

The meeting of the present councils today will be the last but one which they will hold. The last meeting will occur two weeks later, March 26. The new councils will meet the first time, for organization, on April 2, three weeks from today.

It is believed the administration has given up all hope of passing the light ordinance for a four-year contract, because of the stand taken by Controller Larkin, who has served notice on the mayor and the heads of the city departments that he will permit no more contracts to be made until the Guthrie administration takes charge.

Even should councils pass the ordinance authorizing a four-year contract, the controller would delay the award of the contract past the second day of April by continuing the advertisement for bids until that time.

Another attempt will be made in common council tonight to pass the Pittsburgh Junction railroad ordinance. The ordinance has passed select and has been held up for several months in the lower branch. The ordinance is in a position where a suspension of the rules or a three-fourths vote is required to take action on it. At the last meeting a motion to suspend the rules did not get even a majority vote. It is stated that the Fourteenth ward members will make an effort tonight to suspend the rules and that they are counting on the support of some Republicans who voted against the bill at the last meeting. If the ordinance is not passed tonight or at the following session it will die with the present councils.

SHUTS TOWN TIGHT.

Punxsutawney Has Her First Sunday Experience With the New Reform Burgess.

PUNXSUTAWNEY, PA., March 11.—(Special.)—Through an order issued last night the new burgess, J. W. Brown, closed Punxsutawney tight, and then sat down on the lid. Cigar smokers, folk with a penchant for confectionery and all those who have been having fresh vegetables and bread delivered on Sunday, were obliged to do without, or else go to Lindsey. Many chose the latter alternative. The news stand was ordered not to open until noon, and to close again 15 minutes after the arrival of the afternoon mail trains.

Cigar stores were forbidden to open at all. Restaurants and other places having cigar cases were compelled to buy padlocks and keep their cigar cases locked from last midnight until 12 o'clock tonight. The Taxpayers' league, which was recently organized here and which claims the credit for electing Burgess Brown, is said to be behind the Sunday closing movement.

Giant Dredger Is On Sand Bars.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 11.—(Special.)—A giant dredger, owned by the Myers brothers and Horace Leads, worth $125,000, while moving out of the inlet today, struck on a sandbar and is in danger of serious injury should a storm break loose. She is to go to Holly Beach to fill in low beach land.

College Women Learn Metal Working.

Women make jewelry in teachers' colleges now. Not crude, amateurish work, but finished pieces. They turn out artistic stickpins, belt buckles, rings, brooches, etc., in fact everything in gold, silver or copper jewelry that either women or men wear. Their unique work is attracting much attention and some of the young women have all the orders for hand-made pieces they can fill. In this way they are making a good income each week at the same time and perfecting the art. Practical gold and silver smithing is learned, as well as stone cutting, so that they can make decorations for furniture as easily as they can cut a stone for a ring or pin.

It is exceedingly interesting to see them in the classroom in the building in West One Hundred and Twentieth street, between Amsterdam avenue and Broadway, New York. The young women wear huge aprons with sleeves that entirely cover their dresses, and some who want to keep their hands in condition work in kid gloves. The latter are not the most successful workers, for it takes keenness of touch to know just when the point is the right degree of sharpness. Enthusiastic ones labor with sleeves rolled up to their elbows, with hands that are black with the dirt, and seem to enjoy it.

There is no theory about their work; everything is practical, for they are really working out an apprenticeship, and on their degree of proficiency in hand-made jewelry many of them hope to secure positions. They use heavy steel hammers and solder of both soft and hard kinds. The latter is difficult because a bellows and fire are necessary, but most of the students go at it as if they had been heating metal to a molten mass all their lives. Having melted the solder, they dip the piece of jewelry into a bath of acid with a big pair of pincers, then through water and hurry over to an anvil, where they hammer or else cut it into the desired shape. Occasionally one of them forgets to put the metal through the water bath, and as a result the acid burns her hands or clothing, for it is powerful, as scarred hands and aprons with holes show.

All designs are original. They are given a model for a stickpin, a brooch, etc., and requested to work out their own ideas in shape and decoration. This scheme makes each lesson interesting, for there is a mild kind of rivalry among them that stimulates each girl to do her best and if possible turn out a more artistic bit of work than her neighbor.

They began by making copper buttons for coats, the simplest kind of work, that requires only two tools. Instead of using them as buttons, most of the girls fashioned theirs into hatpins by soldering on a long metal point as soon as they learned how to run the bellows and regulate the flame.

Then they tried a stickpin. These were made from silver. One piece was given to each girl and out of it she hammered and cut the point and a decorative top. Most of these were chased delicately, some with a flower-like tracery, others with geometric designs. They are still working on stickpins, for setting stones is difficult and they require much practice before the setting is neat enough to either exhibit or sell. Some of the girls have beautiful stones which they take from pieces of expensive manufactured jewelry and put in their own hand-made pieces. The cheap stones, smoky quartz, and wheat are known as the "craft pebbles," are furnished by the college for the students to practice on, in cutting as well as in the first settings.

Belt buckles of copper or silver have been a favorite with the class and almost every girl wears one, while many have given them to friends, so that half the girl students in Teachers' college are wearing hand-made metal belt buckles. Brooches with stones setting and the pin and clasp on the back are difficult to turn out well, and many a student has been in tears over a failure that she had promised for a friend or had hoped to have ready to wear at a reception.

"The beauty of being able to make these things," as one young woman said, "is that we can run into the workshop and make a pin or a buckle in a few hours and have it ready to wear in the evening, instead of shopping for hours to try to get something that is wanted."

Gold rings with settings and gold link chains and necklaces are pieces of work that the young women find unusually hard, for the gold is expensive and their work must therefore be particularly accurate or it is worth little and looks decidedly crude.

Some of the most successful work has been in copper, match boxes, trimmings for stationery sets, handles for drawers and ends for bedroom sets, and the latter have brought in good profits to the young women who have made a specialty of original hand-made designs.

This class of 16 young women was started last September as an experiment, but the work has been so practical and such a success that it will undoubtedly be added as another branch to the manual training department.

BLOUSE OF FRENCH LINEN

None of the springtime fashions are more delightful than the lingerie blouses modeled from all kinds of sheer linens and soft silks. Although lace and embroidery are the garnitures par excellence for these blouses, a number of the latest Parisian creations show bands of taffeta in combination with thread laces, making a handsome ensemble. The design sketched here is of cream white handkerchief linen, sheer and soft, but with enough crispness of texture to supply the touch of daintiness indispensable to the ultra-modish lingerie designs. The waist is tucked below the bust line, the tucks running around the figure. A neck cut away in V-shape is finished with tiny ruchings of lace stitched together with a final band of white taffeta. This band is used as a connecting link between the lace ruchings and a shirred ruffle of linen draped upon the blouse in fichu effect. Puffed sleeves, fitted to the arms below the shoulders by wide tucks, lend charm to the design. They are finished with ruffles of linen and tiny bows of black velvet ribbon.

Table Glass.

Most attractive is the new and beautiful rock crystal which combines at once an effect of plainness and richness that will appeal to the discriminating lover of tableware. It comes both plain and engraved.

Too much care cannot be given to the washing of heavily cut glass. Never put it in hot water. The housekeeper who holds that no glass can be made brilliant without the use of very hot water will have to eschew the use of cut glass entirely. There is no article of tableware more susceptible to changes of temperature than cut glass. Nothing is more fragile. Compared with cut glass the delicate shapes of Austrian ware are strongly serviceable. The cutting of course accounts for this. The glass for the main may be quite heavy, but the added strain of this weight, taken in conjunction with the thinner parts of the cut surface, makes it an article requiring the utmost care and judgment.

Cut glass should be washed through two waters, but neither should be hot. In cleansing the inside of cruets or decanters, instead of using shot as with other glass, try diced white potatoes. It is less liable to crack the glass and usually satisfactory as a cleanser.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Knock-About Suits for the Early Spring.

For the early spring lightweight cloth suits, rather simply made, will be most in evidence, but later on quite elaborate silk costumes will be seen. Until well into the summer all the street costumes will have short coats over the silk or lingerie waists, for the shirt waist dress is no longer thought as suitable for street or for a short railroad journey as a coat and skirt costume of cloth, silk or linen.

For the morning rough materials as serge and cheviot will be worn, but smooth cloths always make a dressier gown. Checks, plaids and striped materials it is already known will be as popular as the plain colors. For a severe morning dress a lightweight black or dark gray cloth with a tiny white stripe makes a very serviceable gown.

Short coats, bolero, Eton and blouse jackets are now being made up for more than the long jackets. These little coats are some of them quite plain, but the majority are braided or trimmed with straps of the cloth or of velvet the exact shade of the material. The taffeta suits are being trimmed a great deal with bands of cloth always the shade of the silk. On the coat cloth is used instead of braiding, but the skirt need only have a wide border of cloth at the feet. Cloth trimming is to be used also on the veiling and canvas gowns, and even some light silk dresses are being finished with medallions and straps of cloth.

A silk or cloth dress that is made neither on the empire nor the princess model must have a fitted belt of medium width only. Girdles are now all round more than pointed down in the center. The blouse is seen once more, but is not yet at all full, and the flat back still preferred. In every dress there must be a touch of white lace at the throat, and there are few pretty sleeve models that are not finished off with some lace at the elbow or wrist.

Not the Same.

It might interest women to know that hair rings, lockets and chains they are cherishing because they are made from the hair of some dead relative are all counterfeits, according to a wigmaker, says that instead of the hair being that of the supposed friend it is made of strands to match the beloved one's hair, and that the real locks are never used, because, in the first place, they are rarely of a length that could be worked with, and that by the time they were prepared the expense would be so great persons would not care for them. Substitues are therefore given, and, from the commercial point, answer quite as well.

THE GAZETTE PATTERN.

(No. 5591.) Girl's Blouse Dress.

The side closing gives a very smart effect to this little dress, made of blue and green checked mohair. The trimming consists of bands of plain green and narrow black braid. The slashed sleeve cap, arranged over the full bishop sleeve is a pleasing feature, but may be omitted if desired. The full gathered skirt is finished by a deep hem. Cashmere, challis, albatross, pique and linen are all advised for the making. The medium size requires 2½ yards of 36-inch material. Girls' Blouse Dress No. 5591. Sizes for 8, 9, 10 and 12 years.

The pattern here illustrated will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents.

The Latest Cushion Covers.

Among the new things in fancy work this season, about the daintiest are the lingerie cushion covers. They are made in many shapes and designs. Handkerchief line is the usual fabric employed in their fashionment, though Persian lawn and long cloth make excellent and more economical substitutes. Of course every stitch is made by hand, and with nothing coarser than No. 100 cotton. Lace is used in decoration as well as embroidery in many fanciful ways. About the edge there is a ruffle of linen, of linen and lace or lace threaded on with beading. To be correct, the cushion must be of material readily laundered.

The size is 16x12 inches, or they may be heart-shaped. The latter style is immensely popular. Cover the pillow proper with pink, pale blue or green satin, so that the color may glimmer through the insertions of lace.

English cut work is a favored method of trimming. When one has ability with the needle many less expensive ways of decorating than the use of real lace suggest themselves. The English daisy design is pretty and popular, a flight of butterflies is also effective, so also are geometric designs in tones of pink and green, or pink and blue. Where two colors are used, run the ruffle on the edge with bands of this color to harmonize. Many attractive designs are offered in the art needlework shops, and if your taste is more exclusive you can have your own designs stamped at a slight cost.

Contributed Recipes.

Sea Foam Candy—Three cups brown sugar, one-fourth cup water. Boil together until brittle and add English walnuts and the beaten whites of two eggs. Pour out on a greased pan to cool.—Mrs. H. H. K., Punxsutawney, Pa.

I am sending you a recipe of my own invention. I have experimented with this until I have succeeded in getting what my friends call a delicious pudding.—Mrs. M. G. C., West Liberty, O.:

Take a scant pint of dry bread crumbs, either grated, ground or rolled fine, one cup of sugar, one egg, a full teaspoonful of butter or butter and lard mixed, one-half teaspoon ground cloves, one teaspoonful cinnamon, one teaspoonful allspice, one nutmeg, grated, a pinch of salt. Mix these ingredients until smooth, then stir in a teaspoonful of baking powder. Butter the pan in which it is to be boiled and set in the outer part of a double boiler. Boil rapidly for an hour and a half. If a double boiler is not convenient, put in a small tin bucket, set the vessel in boiling water and boil rapidly for the same length of time. The pudding will turn out a perfect mold when cooked enough. Use hard sauce or dip to suit the taste.

LIGHT TRADING MARKS CLOSE OF THE WEEK

Large Stocks Were Ordered in Anticipation of Good Business—Were Held Over.

While several articles on the general market closed rather firm on Saturday this feeling was not held throughout, as trading during the week did not come up to the expectations of the commission merchants and produce dealers. Sales were expected to be heavy, and for this reason several large stocks were ordered, but the majority of these will likely be held over until this week, as there was not much stuff disposed of on Saturday.

The grocery market, which has remained unusually firm for about three weeks, took a change Saturday, and several changes in quotations were reported during the day. The effect of the weak flour market in Minneapolis has already reached Pittsburgh, as on Saturday there was a reduction of 5 cents in both the fancy spring and winter patents.

Navy beans, which have remained at about the same quotations for many months, are also reported lower, despite the fact the demand continues strong. It is thought the small trading in futures has affected this market. The report on canned tomatoes indicates a reduction of 5 cents.

The cheese market, which has been unusually strong for over four months, is reported as being slightly weaker. However, the feeling has not reached the stage where there has been a reduction in the quotations, and it is thought the market will recover during the first part of the week.

Merchants expect that on the report from Elgin today a further advance will be made on all grades of butter. Fresh fancy creamery stock is still hard to get and there is not much goods in transit.

HAY AND GRAIN.

RECEIPTS.

Receipts bulletined Saturday were: Pennsylvania, 5 feed, 3 hay, 2 oats, 1 corn, 1 rye, 1 straw; Baltimore & Ohio, 3 hay, 1 hay and straw, 3 corn; Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, 2 hay, 1 corn.

The continued light receipts during the week caused an improvement in the general market here. The surplus is all worked off and buyers are hunting new goods now. The buildings continue light and are not likely to increase much, owing to the impassable conditions of the country roads.

WHY ARE
The Bellefield Dwellings
The Best Apartments
In the City?

BECAUSE they afford more of the COMFORTS of LIVING than any other apartments. Newspaper space is too expensive to tell you one-half of the luxurious comforts of these ideal modern homes. Besides, you would not be convinced by mere READING. But you will be by SEEING. That's why we invite you to a personal inspection of the Perfect Bellefield Dwellings a few suites of which will be vacant April 1.

NO ACTORS' MEETING HELD AT THE BELASCO

Rev. Mr. Diffenbach Declines to Address It When He Hears the Object.

The meeting of actors to protest against the discrimination alleged to be practiced by the Pittsburgh Young Men's Christian association against actors, which charge has been denied by the association, did not take place yesterday. When 8 o'clock, the hour set for the meeting, arived just three people were at the door of the Belasco theater. They did not know the meeting had been called off and they were indignant that no notice had been given. Of course, the meeting was primarily for actors, but the public was expected to attend by the promoters.

Henry S. Dixey, the actor, whose manager, William Berlock, was instrumental in getting up the proposed meeting, did not arrive in Pittsburgh until after 8 o'clock, but it was probably known to him that the meeting was off.

George W. Sammis, manager of the theater, said the meeting was called off because the Y. M. C. A. people asked the Rev. A. C. Diffenbach not to address it. Mr. Diffenbach, however, puts an entirely different face on the matter.

"Originally I was asked to speak at a meeting of actors," said Mr. Diffenbach, "and I said that of course I would address a devotional, worshipful meeting of actors, as I would a similar gathering of men and women of any business, profession or trade. Mr. Berlock came to me later and showed me the open Dixey letter addressed to the Y. M. C. A. I told Mr. Berlock that I would not get into any controversy with the Y. M. C. A.; that the Y. M. C. A. denied the alleged discrimination, and that even if the charge were true, the open letter was more unchristian than the alleged discrimination. I said if the statements in the letter were to be the basis of the meeting I would not take part in it. On Tuesday, after the publication, Mr. Berlock called me up on the telephone and said he supposed the meeting was all off. I said it was, so far as I was concerned. The whole thing is an unfortunate occurrence, but you know the extent of my connection with it."

In 1905 similar charges were made against the local Y. M. C. A. and the board of directors denied the existence of such a rule or practice.

FIGHT OVER ACTRESS.

Duel Between Two Cubans Results from Jealousy of Fair American's Favor.

HAVANA, CUBA, March 11.—(Special.)—The recent growth of dueling in Havana, especially in political and army circles, was illustrated again this week in an affair between two well-known young Cubans, who fought over the favors of an actress now visiting this city in company with a wealthy American. The duelists were Captain Jose de Cardenas, who is President Palma's aide, and Fernando Mesa, a young real estate broker.

The actress had made an engagement for dinner with Captain De Cardenas, but took advantage of her feminine prerogative and changed her mind. The favored man was the real estate broker. Captain de Cardenas pursued his rival to a public place and insulted him, until it was plain nothing but pistols or swords could make peace. Swords were chosen and the men met in one of the suburbs. Both were slightly wounded.

Sues Western Union for $10,000.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., March 11.—(Special.)—Mrs. Lizzie Elder has sued the Western Union Telegraph company for $10,000 damages, alleging that the company failed to deliver a telegram announcing the death of her mother, Mrs. Double. Three weeks after her death, it is alleged by the complainant, that she received a letter from her father expressing surprise because she did not attend her mother's funeral.

PRESENT AGE BRIGHT AND FULL OF PROMISE

Homewood Pastor Sees Healthy Public Conscience and a Demand for Righteousness.

"The Splendid Opportunity of the Twentieth Century Young Man" was the subject of the Rev. W. E. McCullough, pastor of the Homewood United Presbyterian church yesterday morning. He said in part:

Unless all signs fail the twentieth century will make former eras look tame and stale. The young man of today should thank God that he is called to do his work in an age when great problems wait to be solved; when gigantic movements are on foot; when men are nervous and trembling in anticipation of still greater things to come; when God's loving hand beckons us onward and our minds and hearts are thrilled with larger conceptions of Divine Fatherhood and human brotherhood.

From the moral standpoint it is now easier to do right and harder to do wrong than in any previous age. Never has there been such evidence of a healthy public conscience. Never has there been such a popular demand for righteousness. Note how that happy expression of the President's, "A square deal," took hold on the American people. It found an echo in their own hearts and consciences. The past few years have witnessed some exceedingly interesting investigations into the moral conduct of men in responsible positions. The search-light has been turned on unmercifully. There is a new crusade going on in this country; it is the crusade against graft, in places high and low. It is getting more and more difficult to be a rascal. Every great victory for honesty is applauded from Maine to California. The popular idols of today are men like Theodore Roosevelt, Joseph Folk, Mark Fagan and others, men of clean lives, whose integrity is above question and whose chief aim is to do right. Surely, if the young man's eyes are open, he can read in these signs of the times plain counsel to be clean and straightforward and morally upright; to range himself uncompromisingly on the side of right, to throw his splendid energies into the work of life, determined to shun everything that is impure and mean and tricky and dishonest. Never was it so easy to follow after righteousness.

Above all else, it is the day of religious opportunity. A famous teacher in Oxford university says, "This generation knows Jesus Christ better than any generation since His own." The young man must not starve his spiritual nature. He who shuts the door of his heart in the face of Jesus Christ makes the one grand mistake of his life, because he denies himself the presence of Him who would be his wisest counsellor and truest friend, as well as his loving Saviour.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.

Special Services Mark Twelfth Year of Trinity M. P. Congregation.

The congregation of Trinity Methodist Protestant church, Bidwell street, Allegheny, of which the Rev. J. Upton Evans is pastor, fittingly celebrated the twelfth anniversary of their church building yesterday by holding three services.

The Rev. Fred C. Klein, who was the first pastor, preached at 10:45 a. m. In the afternoon at 2:30 addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. Lyman E. Davies, the Rev. Dr. J. Jennings, the Rev. F. H. Lewis, the Rev. Dr. George Shaffer, the Rev. Dr. S. K. Spahr, the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Wilbur, H. J. Heinz and others. Special music was a feature. The Rev. Dr. David Jones, who was the last pastor of the old church, Fifth avenue, preached in the evening. Trinity church is a part of the corporation known as the First Methodist Protestant church of Pittsburgh.

New Site for Steel Plant.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 11.—(Special.)—A change has been made in the plans of the Republic Iron and Steel Company for the building of the new open hearth steel plant. Instead of moving the 18-inch and the No. 3 bar mills from the Brown-Bonnell plant to the Valley plant to make room for the steel plant, the new works will be located across the river on land recently purchased.

THE AMERICAN BOY IS NOT NATURALLY BAD

He May Show Barbarous Traits, says Dr. Grannis—Education and Training Fix Character.

The Rev. Dr. George W. Grannis, pastor of the Walton Methodist Episcopal church, South Twenty-fifth and Sarah streets, is giving a series of sermons on "The American Boy." Last evening, on the topic, "Is He Naturally Bad?" Mr. Grannis said:

Is there an aversion in the natural mind to spiritual things? Yes and no. In the first stages of boy life he is easily interested and won, but after the deceitful snares of sin have lured him from paths of rectitude he is alarmingly susceptible to evil influences. The normal boy gives unmistakable signs of a tendency to the barbarous. But there is nothing strange about that, as we do not have to go very far back in the history of our fathers to find them using the skulls of their victims as drinking cups.

I am not prepared to abandon the old doctrine of transmission of evil tendencies. But I am coming to feel that the disposition toward wrong-doing is more a result of education than taint of blood. The average boy is a hero-worshiper. Sad to relate, the heroes crowned by the parent, press and pulpit are not always of the best type. We forget that only a small part of the boy's education is obtained in the school room. The fact is, he is in school from the time he is born until he dies. His associates, the daily paper, the pictures upon the bill-boards and on the walls of the home have their influence.

I am aware that in this day a suggestion from the pulpit upon the training of children provokes a smile. But in face of that knowledge I will venture a few hints upon important points. First, care in the language used by the parent to the child. Recently, as I was passing a home, three children in the yard became involved in a dispute. The mother from an open window exclaimed, "You little devils, what are you doing?" It was no fault of mine that I detected a striking resemblance between mother and children. Secondly, wisdom in correction. Often an accident is punished as severely as a wilful wrong. Parents, press and school should awake to the importance of the guidance of the boy. He is in our keeping. We cannot escape the responsibility, nor should we if we could.

THE THREE RIVERS

The stage of water at Davis Island dam at 8 o'clock last night was 6.4 feet, and the river was falling.

WORKING ON LYSLE.

Sunken Towboat Will Be Raised in a Few Days.

Work was commenced yesterday to raise the tow boat Tom Lysle that sank in the Monongahela river Saturday at the foot of Sixth street, Braddock. She will be righted today and will probably be raised tomorrow or Wednesday. The Monongahela Consolidated Coal and Coke Company, owners of the boat, do not think she is very badly crippled, and it is said the boat will be put into service as soon as necessary repairs are made.

W. H. Crump, master of transportation of the Monongahela company, will return today from Louisville, where he has been on business.

A public hearing will be held in the United States engineer's office in Wheeling on March 29 to receive objections to the proposed building of two bridges across the Ohio river at that city.

"UNREASONABLE AND UNREADY INQUIRERS"

Dr. J. Kinsey Smith Says Many People Today Act in Same Spirit as Chief Priests of Old.

"Unreasonable and Unready Inquirers" was the theme of the Rev. Dr. J. Kinsley Smith yesterday morning at the Shadyside Presbyterian church. He took as his text Luke 22:66-67, "As soon as it was day the elders of the people and the chief priests and the scribes came together and led Him into their council, saying, 'Art Thous the Christ, tell us?' And He said unto them, 'If I told you, ye will not believe.'" Dr. Smith said:

No set of persons appeared to be more interested and inquiring at the outset in the teaching and work of Jesus than these elders of the people, chief priests and scribes, who later on grew to hate him with a hatred more intense and murderous than they ever felt towards any other human being. But they had learned to disguise this hatred under the pretense of a real desire to be enlightened as to the truth.

Too many today, I fear, are like these secret unbelievers and enemies of our Lord. They are more or less insincere or, at least, half-hearted seekers after religious truth. No doubt there are among these some honest doubters, who earnestly long for the light which is yet denied them. But there are more who belong to the class which at heart does not want to be convinced. There is first a class of merely idle, curious, superficial investigators of religious questions who take only a polite, academic, dilettante interest. They never find the great secret of religion because they are too flippant or light-minded.

A second class miss the Christian goal because, while they are really earnest, are unwilling to abandon themselves absolutely to His care and give up all for His sake. A third class come to Christ only to deny His claim over them. They search the scriptures only to prove them untrue. They enter the church and even the pulpit only to spread abroad their own unbelief and disturb the faith of weaker souls. They may not possess the conscious malice of the men who crucified our Lord, but they belong to the same general family.

We shall never find the Lord, whether in His word or at the foot of the cross or in the depths of our own souls, until we seek Him earnestly, faithfully and with intense and whole-hearted desire.

"OUR FRIENDLY FOES."

Dr. J. Leonard Levy Holds a Man is to Be Congratulated on the Enemies He Makes.

The nineteenth lecture of the fifth series of Sunday services held under the auspices of the Reform Congregation Rodeph Shalom was given yesterday morning in Carnegie hall, Allegheny, by Rabbi J. Leonard Levy on "False Friends and Friendly Foes." After paying high tribute to the sentiment of friendship, Dr. Levy said:

It is impossible that a true friend should ever desert his loved companion or prove faithless to the noble impulses of friendship. Friendship properly understood is like all the best things of the world—very rare, and therefore all the more precious. Talmudic writers advise us that any affection which depends for its existence upon any selfish motive cannot long continue. I do not hesitate to say that the new mayor of Pittsburgh has more to fear from the so-called friends than from his well recognized enemies.

If there is no such things as false friends it is very certain that there do exist in a very real manner those whom we call our friendly foes. The enemy, unwittingly and perhaps unwillingly, induces us to exercise greater care and caution, redoubles our energy and inspires greater determination. To have the hatred of some people is to possess the stamp of distinction; to have the enmity of some classes is to bear the order of distinguished service; to call forth denunciation of some persons in every community is to be honored in a manner above their power of conferring honor. For thus ever were treated the prophets of the race. The enemy, therefore, is unwillingly a friend.

Two Dead and Third Critically Ill.

BUTLER, PA., March 11.—(Special.)—Two children, aged 11 and 6, of Julian Clark, died last night of pneumonia and measles. Their brother, aged 13, is not expected to live. The children are grandchildren of the late Rev. James Clark of Prospect.

RAILROAD RATES, ALGECIRAS, MINERS AND STATEHOOD IN CENTER OF STAGE

The only visible object on the horizon of the United States senate is the railroad rate bill. This measure is now on the calendar as the unfinished business, which gives it the right of way over every other subject each day after 2 o'clock. Doubtless the railroad bill would be temporarily sidetracked for the appropriation bill if a request to that effect should be made, but unless the railroad bill remains undisposed of longer than anyone counts upon, no effort will be made to displace it, even temporarily with the supply bills, for the senate is a unit in its desire to have the matter disposed of at the earliest practicable moment. Senator Tillman, who has the bill in charge, will make a written report on it, and efforts to amend it will proceed. There may be said to be three divisions in the senate: the first, standing for the bill as it came from the house; the second, demanding a provision for a review of the findings of the interstate commerce commission of a character that will remove the entire question from the commission without leaving its ruling in force, and the third, granting a review, but maintaining the orders of the commission in effect until a final disposition of the question is reached in the courts. The discussion will commence with a speech by Senator Culbertson today, will be continued by Senator Simmons on Tuesday and Senator Rayner on Wednesday.

The house of representatives this week will enter upon a protracted discussion of ways and means to restrict the expenditures of appropriations for the support of the legislative, executive and judicial branches of the government to the exact and specific purposes for which they are made. This discussion will be on the consideration of the appropriation bill for these branches, carrying $29,134,181. Chairman Tawney of the appropriation committee estimates it will take 10 days to dispose of the bill, which is to be kept constantly before the house until finally disposed of some time next week.

The statehood situation has again been shifted to the house, and while there is a general understanding that nothing is to be done with the bill until the return of the rivers and harbors committee from the south, which will be some time Saturday, it is possible that action may not be delayed on that account. It is not unlikely there will be a Republican caucus on the bill some evening during the week.

M. Jean Sarrien having undertaken the formation of a ministry, in succession to that of M. Rouvier, which was defeated in the chamber of deputies last week, interest in French affairs will center in the selection of individual members of the cabinet and in the chance which is likely to result in the policy relative to the application of the law providing for the separation of church and state. M. Leon Bourgeois has already accepted the ministry of foreign affairs, and as his views are known to be in general accord with those of M. Rouvier, no change in the French attitude regarding Moroccan reforms is to be anticipated.

The outlook at Algeciras is favorable to a pacific adjustment of the France-Germany controversy. Conciliation is apparently in the air, and, the indications are that mutual concessions will be made in the matters of the Moroccan bank, after which the police question will come up, with much in favor of a satisfactory adjustment.

The week should see a decision one way or the other of the question of a strike of coal miners in both the anthracite and the bituminous fields. As a direct result of President Roosevelt's letter to President Mitchell, a special national convention of the United Mine Workers will assemble in Indianapolis, March 15.

Fifteen universities of this country will be represented at the seventh conference of the Association of American Universities at San Francisco, March 14-17.

A national consular reform convention will be held in Washington, March 13. Delegates from various cities and chambers of commerce will be present and an interesting meeting is anticipated.

A Danger That Threatens Us All!

Health reports prove that diseases of the kidneys are growing more common every day. Men, women and children suffer. It's due to the hurry, worry and strife of modern life. The kidneys are overtaxed—can't keep up with their daily work of filtering the blood. Suddenly comes pain in the back, dizzy spells, urinary disorders. You feel all run down and don't know why. These early warnings must not be overlooked, for kidney diseases gain a firmer hold every day, and neglect results in a complicated case of diabetes, dropsy, Bright's disease, or stone in the kidneys. A simple rule will save all this suffering. "Keep the kidneys well and the kidneys will keep you well."

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

CURE ALL ILLS OF THE KIDNEYS

Cure Backache and Urinary Disorders

Doan's Kidney Pills cure backache and urinary disorders by curing the cause, the kidneys.

It is plain that a healthy back should not ache after every little exertion. It is really the sick kidneys that are aching. Keep the kidneys working and backache will disappear.

Doan's Kidney Pills strengthen the kidneys and bladder—cure too frequent urination, scanty, burning passages, sediment, gravel, dribbling, etc.

The Proof---Pittsburgh Testimony

Sycamore Street

John C. Zeli, conductor on the Monongahela Incline, and living at 246 Sycamore St., South Side, says: "Years ago I made a statement telling how I had been cured by Doan's Kidney Pills when other medicines had failed. I did this because I was led to use Doan's Kidney Pills myself through the recommendation of a friend, which was published in the newspapers, and I felt that as I had been cured through the publication of another person's statement, it was only fair and just that I should do as much for others. I had kidney trouble for some time, but was so busy from day to day that I neglected it. My work was tedious and hard on the back. I used many kinds of kidney remedies, but never received the benefit from any that I did from Doan's Kidney Pills, which seemed to go right straight to the spot. I can cheerfully say that Doan's Kidney Pills are all right and I would not recommend them if I did not know this to be a fact."

Peach Street

Lieut. A. K. Foster, of Engine company No. 15, Pittsburgh Fire Department, and living at 4 Peach street, says: "Three years ago I was induced to use Doan's Kidney Pills through the recommendation of a friend. I would not be afraid to recommend them to anybody now, as I derived more benefit from using this remedy than any other medicine I have ever used. I think I had tried everything supposed to cure kidney trouble before I got Doan's Kidney Pills. It is the first medicine to give me any real help, and I feel safe in recommending it to anybody."

Virginia Street

Mrs. Geo. Mitteistadter, of 305 Virginia st., Mt. Washington, says: "I can only tell you as I have told a number of others on different occasions that Doan's Kidney Pills is the only good remedy I have ever found for backache and kidney trouble. I became convinced of their merits several years ago when I had been in bed for two weeks with backache. My doctor failed to relieve me and I was unable to get about at all. This was not my first attack, as I had been troubled with symptoms of kidney disorders for many years. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me entire relief, and whenever I suffer a spell from taking cold or any other cause they always promptly stop the attack."

Sarah Street

Mrs. W. Rauenbehler of 1820 Sarah St., South Side, Pittsburgh, Pa., says: "In the winter I suffered a great deal from pains in the back and the secretions from the kidneys were heavy, white, and contained a good deal of mucus. Last winter while suffering from one of these attacks I happened to see Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and began using them. They helped me from the start and I know of others who have experienced just as complete relief as I from the use of this remedy."

The above statement was made on August 26, 1897, interviewed on May 19, 1904, almost seven years later, Mrs. Rauenbehler said: "The testimonial I gave seven years ago recommending Doan's Kidney Pills still stands good. I have had no reason to change my opinion of this remedy and you may continue to use my statement for publication."

Cure Aches and Ills of Women

Many women worry over such very common aches and ills as headaches, nervousness, bearing-down pains, backache and urinary disorders—believing them due to some organic female weakness. These pains are simple warnings of kidney troubles, from which men suffer just as frequently as women.

Don't fret. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills and see how soon you will feel better, work better, rest better and sleep better. Continued treatment will cure the kidneys and restore good health.
